Robbers hit bank for $16k

Wilmington police are still looking for two men who robbed the North Wilmington office of the Reading Cooperative Bank of about $16,000 last Thursday.

Two men backed a grey van into a parking space at the bank at 10 a.m. and entered the bank, wearing ski masks. While one man stood by the door holding a gun on a customer, the other jumped the counter. He proceeded to empty the tellers' drawers into a brown plastic bag, asking where the big bills were.

About a minute and a half into the robbery, the robber at the door said that time was up.

The men jumped in the van and fled.

Police quickly found the van a short distance away, behind Dinette World, where the robbers had apparently parked a second vehicle, described as a brown, full-sized car.

Deputy Chief Bernard Nally said on Wednesday that at that time, police had no further leads.

Get-away van

The two men who robbed the Reading Cooperative Bank Thursday morning quickly abandoned their stolen van. It was found in an alley behind the Dinette World building, not far from the bank. A brown car was seen leaving the area where the van was found.

Teachers say no to pay freeze

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Teachers Association last week refused a request to re-open their contracts to discuss a possible salary freeze. However, according to WTA President John Wood, there is still room for discussion of all options to bring in a viable school budget for FY '92.

"I don't think we've closed the door yet," said Wood, referring to a letter sent to Town Counsel Alan Altman, attorney for the school committee. In the letter, Wood said the WTA was "not willing at this time to reopen their collective bargaining agreements" but was willing to discuss next year's budget with the committee.

The school committee had authorized Supt. William Fay to send letters to all six school unions asking them to consider taking a cut of all or part of their seven percent pay hike. Fay said Friday both he and Business Manager Peter DeRoeve were willing to take a reduction in salary. In addition, said Fay, he had a response from the director's union saying members had voted unanimously to reopen their contracts. Fay said it was his understanding the principal's union would follow suit.

In an interview Saturday, Wood said though only 19 members of the WTA executive board voted Wednesday not to reopen the contract at this time, it was his feeling the whole membership supports the board's stand.

"I think the general membership supports the executive board. What we don't want is to throw the contract open exclusively on their (school board's) terms. We would like the committee to take a general look at the whole school department, including Class E positions," Wood said.

In explaining further, Wood pointed out "people really have to believe giving up their raise is the only option left. It seems every time they want to save money, they come to us first."

Wood said his board would like to see more specifics on the budget and on Fay's alternative proposals. If, after discussing the budget the executive board is "satisfied," Wood said, the board would be willing to bring the issue to the general membership and let WTA members make the final decision on a salary freeze.

Fay said he was "very disappointed" in the response from the WTA.

"I think it's a mistake not to come to the bargaining table," he said.

Fay told this paper he felt the WTA should have come back with an alternate solution to avoid having to lay off teachers next year.

"I'm interested primarily in kids. The town of Wilmington has always supported public education. I can't make up $919,904 (the amount of a shortfall in the FY'92 budget) without cutting teachers," said Fay.

Fay explained he would talk to Wood soon and ask him to expand on the meaning of his letter. Meanwhile, Wood said "the ball's with them" and the WTA is waiting for a response from the school committee.

East-side sewer construction hinges on private donations

With $1 million already pledged, the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners are asking businesses and developers to put up money to build a new sewer main on the east side of town. The price tag for the new sewer is estimated to be $5.5 to $6.5 million.

In a meeting at the Town Hall on Monday evening, Chairman Arthur Smith said the commission was looking for suggestions and money.

The million-dollar donation that set the plans in motion is an offer from General Electric. That company sold its Wilmington plant a couple of years ago to Ametek, but the purchase and sale agreement stipulated that GE was responsible for the sewer system. An order from the Mass. Dept. of Environmental Protection (DEP) will require that the septic system for the plant be rebuilt into a sewage treatment plant, costing $1.25 million. Faced with that expense, GE is offering the town $1 million to build the sewer. The only catch is that the project cannot wait indefinitely.

Smith listed some other incentives for moving ahead with the sewer in a timely fashion. Among them were:

- The bidding environment is presently quite favorable.
- Part of the sewer would run along the Haverhill division of the MBTA. If the MBTA builds a second set of tracks as is projected, the cost of installing the sewer goes up substantially.
- If the state rebuilds Route 129, the DPW will prohibit digging up the road for five years.
- The commissioners currently have permission to cross land owned by Textron (Avco) with no charge, an agreement which may not hold in the future.

George Allan, an engineer with Dufresne Henry and a former member of the commission, has been hired to do some of the preliminary planning of the sewer line. Allan said that the time frame for the sewer was two and a half years.

"That's a fast track, but a lot of the preliminary work has been done," Allan said. Fay, Spofford and Thorndike began the design of the sewer two years ago, he said.

Commissioners hope to present the proposal at the annual town meeting in spring,

Smith said that without outside funding, the sewer cannot be built, and commissioners would not even take the proposal to town meeting.

The sewer would begin on Fordham Road near Concord Street near the North Reading line. It would then go along Park Street, Woburn Street and Lowell Street. At Maple Meadow Brook, it would turn and proceed cross-country to Main Street where it would connect with the main interceptor sewer.

Smith said that the DEP is becoming increasingly concerned about septic systems in the Fordham Road industrial area, due to its proximity to the Reading water supply. He said that there were a lot of systems in the area that were "limping along."

One person interested in the sewer was Dennis Sargent, with the Northgate Nursing Home planned for West Street. He said that his firm was hoping to open the nursing home in 12 to 14 months, and wanted to know if they would be allowed to use a holding tank until the sewer is built. Allan agreed that building a septic system was ludicrous, and said that maybe something could be worked out if the Board of Health would allow it.

Sargent had several questions as to what formula would be used for asking for donations. There is no

Arts celebration planned to support auditorium renovation

When Wilmington High School was renovated in recent years, there was one major omission. The Herbert C. Barrows Auditorium was never renovated, despite some $7 million in work on the remainder of the building.

The Permanent Building Committee (PBC) at the time decided to forego the renovation of the auditorium to keep the cost of the project down.

Lorraine Kalil, director of performing and fine arts, recently launched a drive to fund the renovation of the auditorium.

Among the needs of the auditorium are a new lighting system, new seating. The auditorium was built in 1956 with a seating capacity of 502. With damaged seats, the present capacity is only about 350.

The good news in the funding drive is that there is $99,000 left after the replacement of the boiler system in the high school. Diane Allan of the PBC estimates that this will cover a third of the cost of the planned renovation.

A week of entertainment is planned for March to plug in a major block of funding for the renovation project.

The Celebration of the Arts will run from March 8 to 16, including two weekends.

The Celebration will kick off with the play "Our Town," by Thornton Wilder, to be staged in the Barrows Auditorium on Friday and Saturday, March 8 and 9 at 8 p.m. The cast is made up of students, parents and teachers.

On Sunday, March 10, there will be a free concert by the U.S. Air Force Band, a reserve unit from Otis Air Force Base. The conductor is Capt. Michael Donovan. The concert will be held in the high school gymnasium at 7 p.m.

The students get into the act on Tuesday night, March 12, at 7 p.m. when the high school and middle school bands and choruses perform at the high school gym. There will be a donation, but no ticket.

Wednesday night is for the kids, with a jazz-rock-rap concert in the auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

The elementary schools concert will be on Thursday night, with more than 400 students taking part. The concert will include choruses, bands and strings from each of the three elementary schools. The concert is in the high school gym at 7 p.m.

The Sons of Italy will host a dinner-dance on Friday night. The tickets are limited and priced at $30 per person, and will be available in the schools and at Wilmington Music Center.

The final event of the Celebration will be a concert on Sat., March 16 at the gymnasium, combining the People's Chorus, the Alumni Band and the Jazz Band. Show time is 7:30 p.m. and tickets are $4.00.

Along with the concerts, there will be art exhibits all week long at the schools and in other locations.

Also in the works is the Liberty Pole Weekend on May 18 and 19. The Wilmington Minutemen have run this event for several years. This year, the schools will work along with the Minutemen to present an enhanced event, including a ham and bean supper and an 18th century concert

School committee asks for two budgets

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington School Committee on Wednesday directed Supt. William Fay to come back to them with two budgets, one including the negotiated seven percent pay raise for school staff and one without it. The latter budget assumes employees would be willing to give up their pay raises to avoid teacher layoffs. Both budgets would be based on the bottom line figure of $12,671,488, recommended by Town Manager Michael Caira and voted by the committee.

Fay had recommended a $13,591,392 budget for fiscal 1992, which would maintain the present staffing level. After the committee agreed to go with Caira's figure, Fay submitted four plans intended to bring his original proposal in line with Caira's figure. Fay said Monday if school unions agree to a pay cut, there would only be a shortfall of $119,904. Otherwise he would have to cut $919,904 from his proposed budget.

Fay's first plan, Plan A, is his preferred scenario. It would reduce his original budget by $647,141 and assume the unions would be willing to give up part of their raises. Under this plan, there would be an administrative re-organization resulting in a savings of $274,793; cuts in Classification E positions, resulting in the elimination of all elementary and middle school advisors for activities and most high school coaches and advisors (a savings of $60,588); and a reduction of tutors and professional personnel, resulting in a savings of $167,000. In addition, Fay proposes hiring a chairman of occupational education at a cost of $3,240 and a curriculum director at a cost of $55,000. Fay said the latter would also have the job of applying for grants to bring some money into the system. In his administrative reorganization, Fay proposes eliminating department chairs at the high school, reducing the reading director's work year to 10 months, cutting clerical staff in the central office, and bringing the pay of the business partnership coordinator under the daycare budget. A one time $100 per athlete user fee (or $150 per family) will help fund the salaries of the head coaches.

The three other plans include all of Plan A as well as cuts in other areas. Under Plan B, the Wildwood School would be closed and 14.5 staff positions cut. Under Plan C, the North Intermediate School would be closed, 14.5 staff positions would be cut, all eighth graders would be housed at the high school, and all sixth and seventh graders would go to school at the West Intermediate School. This plan would see the demise of the middle school concept just introduced into the system, Fay said. Under Plan D, both the Wildwood and North Intermediate Schools would be closed and 29 staff positions would be cut.

In total, Plan A would see the loss of 11 full time positions and the addition of four positions; Plans B and C would each result in the equivalent of 33.5 positions being cut; and Plan D would result in the equivalent of 36 full time positions being cut. Closing the Wildwood School would save $419,500 while closing the North would save $397,000. Fay said if either or both schools were closed, additional busing costs would have to be figured in.

Miceli: Special needs law 'too broad'

by Arlene Surprenant

Chapter 766, the legislation covering special needs youngsters in the Massachusetts public schools, is "too broad" and the language is "too loose," according to State Rep. James Miceli. Both Miceli and Wilmington's Special Education Director Cleo Fredette were present at last week's school committee meeting to discuss reasons for the large increase in the special needs budget and to find out what relief, if any, is possible in light of the tight economic times.

Fredette explained his budget has risen by $459,700. The increase is in three areas: salaries (up $136,233), psychological services (up $36,089), and overall tuitions (up $287,500) The big hike, said Fredette, is primarily due to the nature of Chapter 766, which requires that individual student needs be met and each student be educated to his or her "maximum ability." In addition, there is no statewide criteria currently in effect in Massachusetts. This opens up the special needs umbrella to students other than those having "intrinsic handicapping conditions."

Miceli agreed with Fredette's assessment.

"It's a wonderful program (but) there are people in the program who don't belong in that program," he said.

Fredette traced problems back to the implementation of Proposition 2 1/2. He explained while Prop 2 1/2 places limits on town spending, Chapter 766 mandates money be spent to meet individual needs for children ranging in age from three to 22 years old. As more special needs youngsters move into Wilmington and the pupil-teacher ratio stays at 8-1 requiring more teachers, special education costs continue to spiral, said Fredette. He added the number of new students moving into town in a given year is unpredictable.

Fredette said one solution might be to exempt special needs tuition and transportation costs from the confines of Prop 2 1/2 . He pointed out this was an option discussed by the Chelmsford School Committee.

Miceli told committeemen though 40 bills on the special needs issue have been filed with the state, only four of them have a good chance to passing this year. These cover staffing, a wording change in the law, the passage of a Medicaid requirement allowing schools to bill Medicaid for some of the costs, and a change in eligibility standards.

"There's been strong opposition to tightening this up until this year," Miceli said of the law. He went on to add that Chapter 766 is a "fiscal disaster" and now is having such a negative impact on school budgets across the Commonwealth that many felt it was time to take a second look. The legislation should be on the floor of the House February 18 to 20, he said.

During the rest of the meeting, school board members zeroed in on ways to save money in the special needs account.

Peg Kane asked how much money could legitimately be cut from that account. Fredette said $157,178 in contingency tuition monies could be taken out but this was "risk-taking" since it's difficult to project how many private placements will be made in the year ahead.

Chairman Dr. Shirley Callan questioned if it wouldn't be cheaper to lease mini vans for special education students to keep transportation costs down. Fredette said over the short term it would be cheaper, but with the need to hire another 18 drivers it wouldn't be practical.

"We're in a terrific bind financially," said Phil Fenton, who decried the loss of the special education criteria that was developed by Fredette and successfully used by him for eight years. The state told the director Wilmington could no longer use the criteria because it was too restrictive. Fenton noted the criteria had saved the town money and said he was willing to challenge the Department of Education in court on the issue.

Committee members unanimously agreed to hire a special education attorney for an hour to see if they had a case if they decide to again use Fredette's criteria.

Fincom begins budget process

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington Finance Committee Chairman Paul Palizzolo called for creativity on the part of his board Tuesday night as members begin to review the town manager's proposed budget for fiscal 1992. Palizzolo said, by now, "the message is out there loud and clear" that all departments will have to be realistic in presenting their individual budgets.

"Last year was the shock year; this year is the year of reality," he said.

Town Manager Michael Caira has proposed a salary freeze for all town and school employees to avoid laying off personnel. Palizzolo pointed out that the contracts for the town's four unions all end this June and the only salary increases proposed on the town side are in step and longevity increases. Wilmington teachers are in the last year of their three year contract, according to central office. Palizzolo said, according to Town Counsel Alan Altman, if the first year of a contract is funded, the school committee is "obligated" to fund it for the remaining years.

"They (school employees) don't have to open their contract if they don't want to," Palizzolo said. However, he added, if they don't, it will pose difficulties for the school system.

Fincom member Walter Kaminski sits in on the school budget talks. He told his board it was his feeling the school committee will provide direction to the superintendent and the final budget will be a school committee budget. He added if the unions demand their seven percent raises, one or more schools will close. Palizzolo noted seven percent pay increases are just "not affordable" in these economic times.

The fincom will meet in public session every Tuesday and Thursday, beginning February 19, to discuss individual budgets with each department head and try to get a handle on where the money is going. The meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. and be held in Room 9 at town hall.

Correction

In theTown Crier on February 6, Wilmington Selectman Mark Haldane was called prescient, that is, able to predict the future. Some correcting statements should be made.

A person who was present at the prize drawing, at the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce told the Town Crier about it. That person was wrong. Mr. Haldane did not draw the name of any prize winner at the Chamber of Commerce, and he made no predictons. All three tickets were drawn by State Senator Bob Buell.

As was reported, Dick Goglia of the Flower Stop won $1000, Gordon Harnum of Harnum Trucking won $1500. The $5000 grand prize was won by brothers Barry and Al Fiorenza, Jr.

It's YOUR Money

IRA MONEY WHEN YOU NEED IT

For many people, an Individual Retirement account represents a big chunk of cash locked away. Fact is, you can get at the money.

Before 59 1/2, in most situations, you must pay a 10 percent penalty, plus income taxes, on any money you take out. But in emergencies - medical problems or a job layoff - those costs may be lower than borrowing the money and trying to pay it back.

If you take money out in the form of an annuity - regular payments spread out over your life expectancy - there's no penalty at any age. But if you start this kind of payout, you have to continue it for five years or until you're 59 1/2, which ever comes later. It's a good way, though, to beef up the pension of early retirees until Social Security kicks in.

You can make IRA-to-IRA rollovers once a year and can have the use of the money as long as you redeposit it within 60 days. With several IRAs set up, one might get several rollover "loans" a year.

Friendly's draws 125 to Operation Desert Storm dinner

by Bill Conlon

The Tewksbury Friendly's held a quiet but impressive event Tuesday night, with little fanfare but plenty of "friendly" feelings left behind.

From 6 to 9 p.m., Friendly's held a spaghetti dinner for the families of Operation Desert Storm, at only $1.99 each. The dinner, and all the decorations in the Main Street restaurant, were part of an ongoing effort by Friendly's staff to live up to their corporate name.

About 125 people took part in the offer, according to manager Brian Morse, admiring the wall full of paper hearts, each bearing the name of a Desert Storm participant, and signing their loved ones names to a yellow quilt, made by Anne Stewart at Friendly's, on another wall.

More important, the dinner was a chance for the families to escape the daily stress of watching or reading news accounts, hoping against hope that their love one's outfit doesn't get mentioned, or in other cases, hoping to receive some word, any word, from the Persian Gulf.

Dick and Jeanne Turnage, who live on North Street, have a son, Bryan, right now on the front lines at the Saudi - Iraqi border.

Bryan is a member of the crack 101st Airborne Division, where he serves as crewman on a "Dragon" anti-tank missile squad. Dick said that Bryan hit five of five targets with the Dragon in basic training, so he was given the job of lugging the 70 pound missile package, and perhaps having to use it.

Jeanne said she watched the news on TV at the start of the shooting in the Persian Gulf, but not anymore. The stress of watching, and always worrying, became too much. There was both too much information and not enough.

One of her biggest complaints is that the 101st is never mentioned at all in news accounts, which is odd for what may arguably be the U.S. Army's most famous division, The 101st was the unit that held the town of Bastogne, in the Battle of the Bulge in Second World War.

"You're very anxious to hear something, anything," Jeanne said. Slow mail delivery is one aspect of the problem, she said, with mail from the Persian Gulf taking about 18 days to arrive, judging by their son's only letter home since his deployment on January 4. A box of goodies was sent January 10, but Bryan never mentioned it in his letter, which arrived last Friday, so there is no telling if he received the package. Bryan has phoned twice since he was deployed to the gulf, the last call coming January 15, the day before the battle began.

HEAT loader Craig Francis, a Hunter Safety Instructor from the Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club, hefts a High Explosive Anti-Tank (HEAT) round during gunnery practice in Saudi Arabia. Craig is seen standing in front of an M-1 main battle tank. Photo loaned by Joe Francis.

"He said 'They let us call today' so we knew something was going to happen soon," said Bryan's sister, Tracy.

Jeanne said she's joined a support group, based out of the Tewksbury Congregational Church, which will meet on Tuesdays, 7 - 8 p.m., just to have somebody who understands the problems and worries.

Incidently, Jeanne said that Bryan told her that the troops in the desert are absolutely thrilled by the show of yellow ribbons and flags that are being shown as support.

Another couple taking a break on Tuesday night were Joe and Linda Francis, of Carter Lane, Wilmington. Their son, Craig, is stationed with an armored battalion in Saudi Arabia.

Craig is part of the food service staff of the battalion, Joe said, but part of their training includes help in loading and firing the main guns on the M-1 tanks, America's prime battle tanks. Joe loaned the photo accompanying this article.

Linda, however, produced a stack of photos taken by Craig and other troops, showing the field conditions in Saudi Arabia and how a field kitchen is set up. A few photos had Christmas decorations visible in the background, so the photos were not very recent. All of the cardboard Christmas decorations were seen only inside the tents, as the Saudis do not allow outside observance of any other religions. That means the Christmas trees and Santa Claus of the U.S. troops were forbidden by the laws of Islam.

"It's really a pretty tough place," Joe said of the Arabian desert. His son is a Hunter Safety Instructor at Tewksbury Rod & Gun Club, or at least an inactive one, but Joe said Craig should be able to intelligently handle the scorpions, vipers, sand fleas, biting flies, and at least one species of cobra, found in that part of the world.

Joe added that one of the scariest situations in the desert, according to Craig, comes at night. That's the time when Bedouin tribesmen ride by on camels, and suddenly open up with Uzi submachine guns. Troops just hunker down in their foxholes and wait for the Bedouins to move along. Nobody is hurt, as the Arab tribesmen apparently are shooting just for the fun of it.

"War stories" like that are hardly the thing to keep families relaxed.

The Francis family, like the Turnages, are worried. With an active shooting war going on in the gulf, and their loved ones just to close to the war zone for comfort, there is good reason for worry. Allied air forces are doing most of the work at the moment, but a ground attack will come, and the families know it. They are have good reason to think, hard and often. about what will come in days ahead.

But they simply can't spend all day locked in worry. Life goes on. There are jobs that can't be given up, and errands to run, and meals to make.

Which makes the dinner offer by Friendly's that much more important. For a few hours, at least, the families left at home by Operation Desert Storm had a chance to relax, and to sit with others who understand first-hand the fear and worry.

A Friendly gesture indeed. The staff at Friendly's deserves a round of applause for their efforts. Morse said the event just covered its costs, adding that he had no intention "of making a killing on it."

If nothing else, the management and staff of Friendly's have made a few new friends.

Hair is the Total You

by Jennifer Diana

TIME FOR A CHANGE

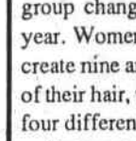

Whoever said that changing one's mind was a woman's prerogative may have gained this notion from observing a woman's changing hairstyles. The fact that women change the cut, color, and drape of their hair quite often is a tribute to their ability to adapt to changing circumstances, as well as to their versatility. A survey of 1,021 randomly selected women by a major pharmaceutical company shows that women are not inhibited when it comes to changing their appearances. In fact, the average woman who is 18 to 24 years old changes her hairstyle 20 times a year. Those in the 25 to 35 age group change hairstyles 14 times a year. Women ages 35 to 49 year sold create nine annual changes to the look of their hair, while those over 50 effect four different looks each year.

If you are thinking about a change for this new year, start at the place where beauty professionals listen and consult with you every step of the way. New England's way to go.

.....Opinion.....

Paul on pols

by Paul Sullivan

Last Sunday I had the pleasure of attending an event at the Greater Lowell Regional Vocational Technical High School. The event was sponsored by the Middlesex North Special Olympics Committee. It was a basketball invitational jamboree including different basketball related events with area towns and groups of towns competing with each other.

The competition was fierce but friendly, and the outcome was actually unimportant. Significant was the feeling I had watching these special men and women of all ages compete for the purest of reasons, competing to prove only to themselves that they could compete. Then as you watch the parents and brothers and sisters of these athletes you realize that it's not only the athletes that are special. The sheer devotion that the families show is so apparent in the enthusiasm that they show the athletes for any accomplishment. Equally moving is the support they show their loved ones when maybe their accomplishments are less then the athlete had hoped.

The most striking part of the event is the enthusiasm that the athletes show each other. They are truly the best audience for each other. This event was put together by the Gagnon family of Lowell, who are deeply involved in the Special Olympics in the area.

This is a family project by the Gagnons, mother Claire Gagnon takes care of publicity and fund raising, son Michael organizes the events with his sister Ann Marie Bisson, with a lot of the dirty work and details being taken care of by father Robert and Michael's wife Peggy. One truly amazing fact is that the Gagnons have no one in their family that is a member of the program. Most of us assume that those who are involved in this type of program have a member of the family with special needs and thus involved in the program. The Gagnon tribe should be an inspiration to us all. They show us that we need not have a family member in the Special Olympics to be involved. As a matter of fact if you want to become part of an organization that does great work, you can. There is a regional bowling tournament that takes place March 3 at the Brunswick lanes in Burlington, and the Gagnons need your help. If you can help please call 957-1800. They need scorers, able to work between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

If you can't help on March 3, the Middlesex North Special Olympics Committee also needs help for the May 11 Special Olympic event that the Gagnons hope will become a major event for the Special Olympics for New England.

Believe me, if you call and offer your help you may think you're helping others, but after you help you will realize that it is they who are doing you a favor by allowing you to be part of this wonderful organization that does so much to help those who are least able to help themselves. Anyone with children should call and get involved. If nothing else, it will let you know that your job as a parent is maybe not as tough as you thought.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

At a time when the men and women in our armed forces are facing their greatest test, we at home are facing a test as well. Our test is to maintain our unity and resolve, as our troops are doing in the Persian Gulf.

We don't want Saddam Hussein to take this country's tolerance for anti-war demonstrators as a signal he should wait out our resolve in a long and bloody war.

I'm outraged at the brutal treatment of our POW's. And I'm saddened to see the media given so much attention to the small number of anti-war protesters who have sprung into action. It seems that every time a few protesters pick up their signs, the cameras swarm around them, and they end up on the news.

Our soldiers have said that they have a job to do and are going to get it done. I feel I have a job to do, too. And that's to stand up in strong support of our troops.

I want them to know that I and the American people are very proud of them. We are all inspired by their bravery.

I hope that you'll print my letter, and others like it, in the days ahead. Thousands of local American newspapers are reaching our men and women in uniform every day. Your newspaper may be one of them. I want the troops to know that we hold them in our thoughts and prayers every day.

Sincerely,
Elsa M. Rettig

Dear Larz:

If you remember, I wrote to you a year ago and told you why I wasn't going to vote for Mike McCoy and I went to the polls in April and cast my two votes for two other candidates, and I felt good doing so.

I've had time reflect on this action and I'm convinced I did the wrong thing.

First I can honestly say I've seen no other official fight for people like Mike McCoy did.

Secondly I understand the Cain-McCoy incident a lot better.

I now see that Cain has been charged with assault and battery in this fracus also and after reading your paper's articles I feel that you have slanted and twisted your writing to suit your purpose.

You are the most potent force in this town government today, and a paper that doesn't tell the truth can cause more harm than any politician. You will never fool me again.

Patrick Moriarty

P.S. I never saw your paper publish assault and battery charges on Bob Cain as you did with Mike McCoy week after week after week...

Editor's reply: We stand behind all news articles on the Cain-McCoy incident. Why was there so much reporting on the incident? It was hot, fresh news with a chain of subsequent developments. As to a complaint being issued against Cain, that matter was reported. Since then, very little has happened. When the case comes to trial, it will be hot news again.

Please do not confuse news articles with opinion pieces, which have been clearly labeled as such.

The February 17, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Winifred Spur, chairman of the Reading Municipal Light Board, commenting on the report of the Wilmington Power Committee to the combined boards of selectmen of Wilmington, North Reading and Lynnfield, stated that the rates charged to the three communities are identical to those charged to customers in Reading with the exception of the rate charged for street lighting. That charge, he said is lower in Reading.

A special service will be held at the Congregational Church at 10 a.m. for the annual observance of the World Day of Prayer.

The Wilmington Barber's Association displayed an ad listing the latest price adjustments, effective Feb. 15: men's haircuts, $1.75; crewcuts and flat tops, $2; children $1.25; children on Saturday, $1.50.

Attorney Roland Wood and E. Hayward Bliss appeared before the board of Selectmen on Monday night to represent the interests of the New North of Boston Realty Corp., which proposes to build a stadium off Route 93 in Wilmington.

Candidates for public office spoke at Candidates' night, sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Wilmington. They included: Wilson Belbin, candidate for Housing Authority; Simon Cutter, candidate for moderator; Richard Keane, and Joseph Paglia, candidates for school committee; Al Lanni, sticker candidate for school committee; Charles Black, Fred Arsenault, James Banda, Robert Lahey, Harold McKelvey; James Miceli, Joseph Sottile and Felice Vitale, candidates for selectman.

Margaret Imbimbo, Marie Butler, and Mary Paulson were among the top 10 scorers in the Wilmington Women's Bowling League.

Pamela Godzyk of Parker Street, was awarded a gold key and a certificate of merit by the Boston Globe, Scholastic Arts Awards.

Elia's Market was offering fresh shoulders (boned if desired) for 49 cents a pound; Kraft Swiss cheese for 59 cents a pound and a coupon worth 72 cents toward the purchase of one, two quart teflon sauce pan, which would bring the price of the pan down to $1.77, if the customer didn't dally. The coupon was scheduled to expire Feb. 19.

frankly speaking

By Kevin John Sowyrda

Sometimes a single person willing to stand up and fight can make a big difference in all our lives.

Gail Marceau proved just that this week when she won her battle against one of the largest insurance companies in Massachusetts.

John Hancock had Gail's future in their hands.

Gail has been waging a battle against breast cancer, and like many women she has come to the point where traditional chemotherapy treatments are no longer enough.

Gail needs a bone marrow transplant, and her health insurance carrier is John Hancock.

Mary Hitchcock Hospital in Hanover, New Hampshire was prepared to administer the procedure, which is probably one of the most painful experiences anyone can endure.

But in December news came from the hospital's accounting department that Hancock would not cover a bone marrow transplant, still considered by the medical community to be an experimental treatment.

The only alternative, according to the hospital, was for Gail's family to personally pay for the bone marrow transplant, some $140,000.

Suddenly Gail's struggle in life was altered. Instead of putting her full energy into the fight against cancer, she now had to wage a financial battle.

Gail is a career public servant working at a state agency in Boston, and her fellow state workers quickly came to her aid. They organized every fundraiser conceivable from bake sales to dances. "This year state workers have taken one hell of a beating, but my colleagues went above and beyond. There's no way anybody could have come through the way these people did", said Gail.

Over $19,000 was raised in a very short period of time.

Just $121,000 to go.

Gail quickly realized that she could not raise this incredible sum of money.

People at work were on her side, but time was not.

The only realistic alternative was to fight the insurance company's decision.

"I made up my mind that I wasn't going to take no for an answer", said Gail.

Marceau began a personal lobbying campaign which involved retaining a lawyer and seeking the help of as many elected officials as would talk to her. Gail's attorney sought a declaratory judgment against the insurance company, which like many in the industry did not cover bone marrow transplants.

Though the procedure still has a very high success rate it is nonetheless considered experimental for breast cancer patients.

"There's only two other cases on record where an insurance company has paid for women to have bone marrow transplants, and that was Blue Cross Blue Shield", said Gail, adding, "They've made women with breast cancer pay or die. That's the bottom line on the part of the hospitals and insurance companies."

This week Gail's court action and endless phone calls paid off. Before any decision had to be rendered by a judge, John Hancock agreed to cover Gail's bone marrow transplant as part of her comprehensive health insurance. "I cried when I got the news", said Gail, "I knew some how we'd come up with the money if we sold everything we owned, but now the pressure is gone. I can change my focus and concentrate on getting better, not on how I'm going to pay to get better".

Gail's victory will mark only the third time that a woman with breast cancer has been covered by insurance for bone marrow treatment. Unlike most people she didn't take no for an answer and wasn't intimidated by an industry famous for intimidation.

"My advice to women fighting breast cancer who have been denied insurance coverage for bone marrow transplant is to fight", said Gail, declaring, "If you don't, you are going to die."

Briefly in politics . . .

David LeBlanc, the political newcomer running for selectman in Tewksbury, came out swinging this week when he called for Selectman Lou Carciofi to withdraw from the race. "Based on the allegations made in Boston newspapers it's impossible for Mr. Carciofi to represent the people of Tewksbury in an honest and fair fashion", said LeBlanc in a statement made Monday morning.

LeBlanc didn't stop there, demanding the incumbent's immediate resignation from the board. "Carciofi's conflicts of interest smell to high Heaven and if he really cares about this community he'll stop trying to serve two masters and leave the board today", said LeBlanc.

When asked for a response Carciofi said, "Who is David LeBlanc ?".

"As far as what appears in the Globe, very much of it is unfounded and speculative at best", said Carciofi, declaring "I've always served the town to the best of my ability and I'm not self serving."

Meanwhile, Anne Looney, considered by many to be a early front-runner in the selectmen contest, assembled her troops at the Oakdale Plaza on Saturday for the first visibility of the campaign season.

David Cressman, realizing his days could be numbered in Tewksbury, may apply for the town manager's post in Billerica, where veteran manager Paul Talbot has announced his retirement.

John Forrest is poised to enter the political fray this year as he mulls a bid for local office. Forrest, a former contender for the board of selectmen and local businessman, is being recruited to run for the housing authority against incumbent Joan Sadowski. Sadowski ran last year to fill a vacancy on the board and defeated her challenger Terry McKenna by a very slim margin.

Cellular One was taken through the ringer Monday night courtesy of Selectman Dan Ballou. The mobile phone company has met some local opposition in their efforts to construct a communications tower and storage building on Lopez Road. Selectmen voted against granting the necessary permit setting the stage for a legal battle which Cellular will probably win.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

When I read the drivel that has dominated your letters to the editor page, I am amazed. As we approach the celebration of the birth of our first President, I can't help but feel disheartened.

What would George Washington think? As America enters into the last decade of the millenium facing new challenges, old problems and the inevitable effect of the business cycle's downturn, the father of our country must be turning over in his grave when he sees that he has become the patriarch of a bunch of whining, oversensitive, spineless wimps.

Old adages like "You can't keep a good man down;" and "He pulled himself up by his bootstraps" have become passe. Now we worry about "politically correct" thinking because we can't say anything that might (God forbid) hurt someone's feelings.

Last week, I was astonished at the printed prose of the local state representative. It was void of style, class or logic. He alleges that you, Fred, lack a shred of common decency. Is that because the local paper reported that the local Rep lost his seat on Ways and Means? Just because you may have failed to report that the State Senator lost a leadership position a few years back (a journalistic gaffe to be sure), that does not mean that the committee assignments of the local politicians become non-newsworthy forevermore.

For the record, as of February 11, 1991, the members of the Joint Committee on Banks and Banking are Senators White, Bertanazzi, Pines, Creeden, Owens, Rauchenbach and Lowell's Nancy A. Sullivan and Representatives Travis, Greg Sullivan, O'Brien, Woodward, Walsh, Casey, Galvin, Mann, Peters and Henry.

Representative Miceli did not confirm or deny his appointment to the Elections Law Committee. Was he? Will he be? What are the Committee assignments of Representatives Brenton and Krekorian and Senator Buell? Have they fibbed about Committee assignments, too? Start spreading the news and stop the whining.

I was amused by the Rep's reference to your "in-house candidate," but stylistically speaking, it is very bad form to use a person's first, middle and last name three times in two paragraphs. A refresher course in pronouns might be in order.

The Rep. makes a good point about the relevancy of his campaign contributors and then proves he can be at least as irrelevant as the next guy by naming his opponent's contributors Logic clearly gave way to whining.

We have become a nation of Rosanne Barrs and Bart Simpsons. Underachievers who see failure as some sort of achievement. Orwell's 1984 is arriving — just a little late. Doublespeak is everywhere.

Whether referring to Geraldine Ferraro or Saddam Hussein, every time President Bush speaks of "kicking ass" the media gasps and we have a week long debate on who may have been offended. Who cars! Ferraro and Hussein should have their tails kicked.

In Wilmington we debate Frederick Stone. Is that the result of unemployment and idleness or is it proof that our education system really has collapsed? Speaking of education, I will leave Chairman Dr. Callan's recent letter for someone else to critique. Vox populi? Latin isn't all that is dead.

The Rep. reminds us that he loves "serving" the people (regardless of the committee assignment). He has "kicked ass" in eight straight elections, including his latest triumph over your in-house candidate, who, it seems, continues to bug the hell out of him.

Not that you need any advice, Rep, but that letter didn't do you any good. We know you don't like Sowyrda or the Neilsons and they don't like you. Fred Stone doesn't like you either. But, Rep, you keep winning elections so why do you allow yourself to be seen as a bad winner by writing whining letters like that which appeared in the February 6, 1991 Town Crier? No one cares whether Common Cause likes you or not. Everyone knows you take PAC money and you still get over 60 percent of the vote. Why does it bother you?

Next time, use the space to tell us how you are voting on whatever committee you are sitting.

We should all resolve to get off our gluteus maximus and take responsibility for our own condition. don't blame it on Dukakis or Weld, Bulger or Bush, Sowyrda or Stone.

Let's hope the Rep will lead us by vowing that he will stop whining about who's picking on him.

Regards,
Thomas Sanderson

Dear Larz:

As the Tewksbury Public Library's month long food drive draws to a close, area residents are urged to visit the library this week with donations of canned goods for needy families in the area. The food drive is being co-sponsored by the Friends of the Library and the Library Trustees.

According to Library Director Elisabeth Desmarais, the food drive has been a great success so far, with 340 items having been donated in the effort's first three weeks. "We are pleased that so many individuals have responded to our appeal. This is a good indication of the true character of Tewksbury's people: they are more than willing to respond in a positive way to address a given situation," Desmarais said.

All items collected have been delivered to the Open Pantry of Greater Lowell, which helps needy families for this area with emergency grocery supplies. Spokesman for the Open Pantry, Dot Rostron expressed her organization's appreciation to the people of Tewksbury who have responded so generously to the public library's food drive.

She said that the Open Pantry has seen a dramatic increase in the number of families requesting assistance, from an average of 25 requests per day only a few short weeks ago, to 40 requests per day last week. This increase in requests has put a severe strain on the Open Pantry's food supplies, and the organization has begun to purchase additional food, with cash donations from local churches and other civic organizations.

Last week, $2,000 was used to purchase food to supplement the Open Pantry's regular donated food items. Rostron said, "Tewksbury's food drive has come at an ideal time, coinciding with a time of great need for area families. As local companies respond to the worsening economy with layoffs, a greater number of families are finding themselves for the first time facing severely strained budgets, which barely cover costs for housing and heating.

We are always gratified when a new group sponsors a campaign such as this one. Beyond the fact of helping us restock our shelves, it also means that more people are being exposed to the stark reality that hunger exists in the Greater Lowell area, sometimes in families right next door to us. There is much hidden hunger," Rostron continued.

The Open Pantry of Greater Lowell has been in existence for seven years. It is open from 9 a.m. until noon, Monday through Friday. it is staffed by one part-time employee and numerous volunteers.

Tewksbury's Public Library will continue to accept donated canned goods throughout this week. Recommended items are non-perishable food items high in protein, such as soups, stews, spaghetti sauce with meat, tuna, and peanut butter. The library is located in Tewksbury Center, between the Town Hall and the Central Fire Station. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday. For more information, call the library at 851-6071.

Elisabeth Desmarais
Library Director

Dear Larz:

We believe this situation deserves printing in your paper.

When our two grade school children started school in September, (six months ago) I noticed some potential dangers on Boutwell Street. As of this date nothing of any substance has been accomplished. Please allow me to elaborate.

First, the crosswalk to the old Boutwell School is in the wrong place. It exits into an area of knee high grass. When it was pointed out that the cross walk should be repainted approximately 20 feet away which would exit onto the walkway and give safer travel to both schools in the area and the tennis courts, the situation was resolved by cutting down the knee high grass. When it was pointed out that the school flasher warning light was no longer in existence, that went ignored. When it was pointed out that the school warning sign was nailed on the inside of a tree, that also was ignored. The old Boutwell School may be presently leased (I wonder why the tenants aren't screaming) but the town still owns the property and must assume some responsibility. What about the kids crossing Boutwell Street going to the West Intermediate school? Don't they deserve some safety precautions?

We have spoken to members of the police department, school department, DPW, and selectmen, but to no avail. We have even offered to pay for the paint for the crosswalk and a new safety sign but that also has been ignored. Maybe the corrections will take place when another kid is killed on Boutwell Street.

Marvin Weiner

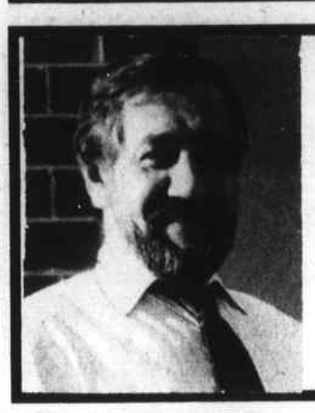

Dear Larz:

It is extremely difficult to read Kevin J. Sowyrda's weekly column. Much time is wasted discerning fact or even opinion from what is obviously a political vendetta. His arguments are those of an immature, adolescent smart aleck - I suspect he pouts easily. No doubt Kevin has something to communicate, though the message is lost to me through vicious, condescending diatribe.

It should be clear to Kevin the reason for his unsuccessful bid to oust Rep. Miceli - the public demands of its servants a more respectful, and genteel nature. And Kevin, sir, you are no Mike Barnicle.

Thoughtfully,
Susan J. Veligor

Selectmen continue appeal against tower

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington selectmen voted unanimously on Monday to continue a court case against Cellular One to prevent the construction and operation of a transmission tower on Lopez Road. Cellular One is currently leasing a parcel of land by the Warren Trask lumber yard off Concord Street in hopes of locating the tower there.

Selectmen made up their minds after hearing concerns of neighbors who were against any kind of tower in their area. Residents said there would still be a visibility problem whether the tower is at its full height of 190 feet or the compromise height of 150 feet.

"They're both going to be an extreme eyesore," said George Davis of Pershing Street.

"I don't want to look at this thing from my backyard. Once this thing's up, it's real hard to get rid of it," said Concord Street resident George Lingenfelter.

Randi Holland of Lincoln Street, the closest abuttor to the project, questioned if all possible sites had been explored.

Real Estate Consultant Dave Burnett explained Cellular One tried to place the tower where it would have the least impact. He said the company explored other locations and he felt like "we made a concentrated attempt to do the best that we possibly could for this area."

Burnett said Cellular One is mandated to provide cellular service to Eastern Massachusetts. The Department of Public Utilities has already approved the tower but the town is currently appealing the decision to the Mass. Supreme Judicial Court. The case was put on hold to see if both sides could work out a compromise. Part of that compromise was an offer to reduce the height of the structure.

Selectmen raised concerns of their own saying they were looking out for the best interest of the neighbors. The most outspoken on the issue was Dan Ballou. He said such towers are unattractive and pointed out Wilmington already has a tower on Main Street.

"You don't see them in Lexington. You don't see them in Reading. You don't see them in Andover next to residential areas. It's just not fair to the people of Wilmington to be second rate when it comes to the beautifying of our town," he argued.

Selectmen pointed out a precedent may have been set in Dedham when that town lost its case and a 190 foot tower was allowed to go through. Selectmen warned the neighbors if the town lost the case it would also lose any concessions or control over the project.

"I'd like to pursue this to the end. I don't believe we've lost yet," said Chairman Bob Doucette, leading Chester Bruce to motion to continue the fight. In a quick poll of those present, all neighbors said

Postmaster to ease parking crunch

by Arlene Surprenant

Changes are in the offing at Wilmington's post office to relieve a crowded parking situation.

Postmaster Jake Quinn was present at the selectmen's meeting Monday evening to explain the changes. Quinn said he has an agreement with the Masonic Lodge to use 10 of their parking spaces for postal employees. He said he was trying to cut down on walk-in traffic by seeing if local companies and stores will take stamps on consignment to sell at face value. A verbal agreement has already been made with the owner of Center News on Main Street, Quinn said. The postmaster is also proposing a change in street parking regulations. Instead of a two-hour limit by the post office, he would like to see a 15-minute limit to promote a quick turnover of customers.

According to Quinn, the biggest parking crunch occurs between the hours of 8 and 10 a.m. when up to 30 vans from local companies park at the back door to pick up their mail. Delivery trucks are also on the lot at that time, Quinn said.

As of next September, said Quinn all delivery vans and personnel will be stationed in Woburn, freeing up an extra 45 parking spaces at the Wilmington office. He said the move will save money by allowing several towns to consolidate into a delivery and collection unit. On the negative side, the transfer to Woburn would affect elderly residents used to picking up pension and social security checks at the Wilmington Post Office. Quinn recommended senior citizens have their checks deposited directly into their bank accounts.

Selectman Dan Ballou had initially raised the overcrowding issue with his board. On Monday, he praised Quinn's efforts and made two more suggestions for the postmaster's consideration. The first suggestion was to create an island-type entrance so cars can pull off the main road and mail letters in outside boxes. The second suggestion was to expand the lot using an abutting parcel. Ballou added he wasn't sure who owned the parcel or if the idea was feasible.

Tewksbury considers Assistant Town Mgr.

After investigating what he called an illegally-built house on Virginia Road, part of the Tewksbury Town Manager's report to the selectmen suggests that a new position might be established in town government, to centralize all building functions.

Town Manager David Cressman suggested a possible change to the town charter, to establish the office of an "Assistant Town Manager for Community Development" to oversee all building-related functions of the town, from building permits to the board of appeals to the conservation commission.

Questions raised in the report to the selectmen include whether the existing town agencies would allow their staffs to be placed under the new position, and whether a salary of $40,000 to $60,000 is justifiable in the current fiscal situation. Also, there would be questions of authority when an elected board disagrees with an appointed position, which is an existing problem.

Cressman first raised the issue of a director of community development in February 1989, but little was heard of the issue afterward.

Selectmen voted to table the town manager's report for two weeks, to review the suggestion.

Living proof that expert cardiac care touches many hearts.

On May 16, 1987, the Barton family had a heart attack. When Victor Barton felt chest pains that Saturday morning, the only thing his wife Elaine knew for sure was that he needed medical attention fast. The fact that New England Memorial was only a few miles away made their choice an easy one. The care they would receive that night would make their choice the right one.

After Victor was stabilized, our nutritionists, rehabilitation experts and cardiac specialists put together an individually tailored program of preventive cardiac care. We also provide family counseling and training in the provision of home after-care.

On May 16, 1987, the cardiac care team at New England Memorial gave a Stoneham family something more than medical care. They gave them a second chance.

The Bartons are living proof that quality care touches many hearts.

For more information regarding our services or for a listing of our physicians, please call (617) 979-7117.

He/she has demonstrated the cooperation, hard work, positive attitude and willingness so important to academic and social success in the middle school setting. Congratulations:

Grade six, Chris Berg and Christina Gemellaro; grade seven, Sandra DeCourcey and Greg Young; grade eight, Jamie Forgett and Michael Fuller; specialists, Nicolle Sordillo and Danny King.

The following 10 students advanced to the school level finals of the 1991 National Geography Bee which was held Thursday, Feb. 7:

Marc DiJulia, Wes Dunham, Matt Vogel, Jack Doucette, Todd Giabbai, Lindsay Roland, Robert Pelletier, Mike Fuller, Danny King and Darren Bishop.

The entire school was invited to witness the grand event at 1:15. The 10 finalists fielded dozens of questions for nearly an hour before two contestants moved into the school championship round. Finalists Todd Giabbai and Jack Doucette were given a series of challenging questions to determine the North's champion. Jack Doucette emerged as the school champion for 1991. Congratulations to all the students who took part. It proved to be an exciting and proud day at the North.

Merrimack College sent a professor of chemistry to visit the North. Dr. Mohan Singh presented a demonstration and lecture suitable to the interests of the Middle School physical science students. The demonstration highlighted exploding gas and the drastic turn of events as solids cooled to minus 196 degrees celsius. This excited even the unmotivated to ask for further explanation and to research deeper. Such as: How did that egg move into the neck of the bottle?

Principal Michael Tikonoff made the arrangements to have Dr. Singh speak to the eighth graders. Many students expressed a desire to pursue chemistry related topics in high school. Students also witnessed hydrogen gas explosions, nitrogen's awesome chilling powers and the eerie day glow of PVC fluid which was better than Halloween glow or "Ghostbuster"slime.

The female students found one demonstration extremely fascinating. It was when a chemical reaction made an ordinary glass bottle become coated with a mirror fluid akin to the mirrored windows of the city. The girls were thinking of many uses for such a "secret" formula. Many students remained after school to discuss the secrets of Dr. Singh's mysteries.

Maybe some day some of the students will pursue a career in chemistry. Thank you Mr. Tikonoff and Dr. Singh.

Woburn Street School

The Woburn Street School extends its congratulations to the newest members of Mr. Dilmore's Superstars. Blue ribbon awards were issued to Marlene O'Rourke, Alexa Stone, Jill Cauldwill, Adam Campbell, Blake Genetti, and Alicia Cranford.

Presidents Day and patriotism go hand in hand at the Woburn Street School. Music students have been singing songs in honor of George Washington's and Abraham Lincoln's birthdays and the singing of patriotic songs have been shared by all in light of the Persian Gulf War.

Second graders enjoyed a field trip to the New England Aquarium in Boston. Students were mesmerized by a dolphin and sea lion show and viewed many exhibits of the great creatures of the deep sea.

Lorraine Kalil, performing arts director was guest speaker at Teusday's Pac meeting. Miss Kalil spoke to parents on the upcoming spring festival to benefit the Barrows Cultural Center (high school auditorium). Woburn Street fourth and fifth graders have been busy preparing for this celebration along with many other students and residents.

The next Pac meeting will be held Tuesday March 19 at 7:30 p.m. This is an open meeting to all guest speaker will be Stephanie Meegan. This parent program Parenting for Character provides parents with the tools they need to "Cornucopia Proof" their children Cornucopia kids expect that "the good life will always be available to them without effort and without the need for personal accountability." Please join us.

The Woburn Street School playground will benefit from the Star Share program. Star Share certificates have been distributed to students and should be used at Star Market on February 19, 20 and 21. Present your Star Share certificate at the register and the playground earns five percent of your sale.

Shawsheen Elementary

Every day students from Ms. Girouard's class provide the weather forecast during our morning opening exercises. They do a great job of researching the temperature in centigrade and fahrenheit, determining barometric pressure, widn direction and speed, type of cloud cover, percipitation and future forecast.

We have been talking about it for a long time and now it's here. On Wednesday we will have an assembly to explain the Math-a-thon program to the children and to pass out the workbooks and pledge pages. Everything will be returned to school by the 27th of February.

Realizing that this is our major means of raising revenue to provide enrichment programs to the children we look to you for your support.

Notices began going home last Friday about the after school program which begins the week of March 4 and will end the week of April 8. Enrollment forms must be returned by Feb. 14.

After a comprehensive spelling bee competition among the four grade five classrooms one winner emerged...Alex Bromley. Alex will represent the Shawsheen School in competition sponsored by the Lowell Sun.

Wildwood School

The kindergarten has been very busy learning how a post office operates. A trip to the Wilmington Post Office was planned for February 8.

Hearts, cupids and lots of love have been flying around the rooms with special projects for Valentine's Day!

The month will end when we celebrate our 100th day of school!

Third graders have been sharpening their writing/computer skills. Each child selected a famous person in sports, history or science and has been researching the importance of each individual's contributions. Ms. O'Hara has been assisting each student in developing a biographical report.

The PAC will be sponsoring an evening of roller skating at Roller World, Route 1, Saugus, six to eight. The cost per person is $3, which includes the fee for skate rental. Please note this is during the Feb. school vacation.

Art teacher Lillian Farreau has been busy with the Wildwood students creating the visual effects and scenery decorations for the spring performance "In Celebration of the Arts!" This exciting program will take place March 14 in the high school gym. This is one program not to be missed!

Mrs. Laura Stinson, Wilmington's Project Charlie Instructor, will be coordinating a series of lessons with student peer leaders from Wilmington High school. The high school students will be involved in peer-pressure related activities with the children in the third and fourth grades. This is a project Mrs. Stinson is coordinating system wide in the elementary grades.

North Intermediate School

Monday, January 28, the eighth grade students were privileged to make the acquaintance of a most interesting and remarkable individual. Meeting with social studies classes throughout the day for the purpose of sharing her experiences as a Peace Corps volunteer in West Africa was Ms. Ruth Gagnon, who recently served for two years and three months as a rural school teacher in the Saharan country of Niger.

A 1984 graduate of North Reading High School and the daughter of our own staff math mentor, Suzanne Gagnon. Ruth donated her Monday to our children in the same spirit of giving that led her to the "Third World" and back for the benefit of children and for the cause of education.

In her presentation to our eighth graders, Ruth was both informative and inspirational, using color slides and Nigerian artifacts to describe the people and culture of a land few of us will ever see. Perhaps more important, however, were the thoughts left with many of us concerning the common values, desires and perspectives of ordinary people all around the globe. Many thanks to Ruth and to her proud parents for helping to make our classrooms and our world a little better.

Adult Ed. registration

The new brochure for the Wilmington Community Adult Education is packed with courses and workshops for the upcoming winter/spring term. Mr. Alan Chasse, director of the program, expressed that the participants help by responding to a survey of needs for evening education. It is his assessment that the current course offerings and workshops are the best available. The 23 course selections and 17 workshops have quality, experienced instructors.

His program offers a variety of career advancement chances such as G.E.D. preparation, medical laboratory equipment, and operating business computers.

He is especially proud to have presented the terrific workshops in Hair Braiding, Home Video Apparatus, Window Decorating, Weight Room Machines, and School Substitute Teaching.

The registration time began Feb. 13 at the Wilmington High School cafeteria and will continue with mail in until Feb. 25.

Chasse has been anticipating that the courses are popular enough to fill enrollments to capacity which makes this self-sustaining, non-profit program flourish. Anyone wishing to register by mail should follow the requests within the brochure. Extra brochures are at the information areas of the town library.

Wilmington senior topics

Valentine dance

The Valentine dinner dance will be held Thursday evening in the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Hall. Dinner will be served at seven. Remember not to arrive before six or you will find the doors closed. It is not fair to the members of the Elks for any of us to enter the lounge which is the members' private part of the building. So please respect the privacy of the Elks. They have always been very generous to the Wilmington senior citizens.

Waiting list

We have a waiting list for this social. If you are not able to attend please call the center. In that way we will make a senior happy who is waiting for a cancellation. You cannot tell any senior that they can take your place. Every senior must check in themselves as they enter the hall unless it is husband or wife you are signing in for.

Surplus commodities

Our order of surplus commodities should arrive at the Buzzell Senior Center Thursday, Feb. 21. Distribution will begin at 10 a.m. We will continue throughout the day until the commodities have been depleted or until 4:30 p.m. As in past orders we will expect some of our request to be cut back. Therefore those who arrive early will have a chance to select one of any of the items we receive. As we move through the day we will start to run out of some items. The requirements to receive these commodities are the same as the past distributions. We will not be delivering any to shutins unless we receive a call that you want them. Therefore, if you cannot get to the Center due to disability or illness and want them delivered call the Center, 658-2258 or 657-7595 we will see that you get them. These commodities are for young and old who qualify.

Income tax preparer

I have received a call from Joseph Hughes, a certified income tax preparer from the AARP who has been assigned to assist senior citizens in our area with their income tax. He has selected to serve us on Mondays. His first Monday will be February 25 starting at 9 a.m. If you want his help call for an appointment, 657-7595. When you arrive for your appointment make sure you have with you, your W-2 forms, your 1099 statements from banks and insurance companies. Your income tax books you received from the State and Federal Governments, last year's tax forms and all pertinent information to be used in preparing your tax.

This service is free to Wilmington seniors, so please, if you have a difficult tax with many forms to fill out that consume much of the preparers time, you should take it to an accountant to file it for you.

Ella's leaving

S.O.S. we have a problem. Ella Perkins, our very talented art teacher had to, with much sorrow resign as our teacher. She is moving to New Hampshire to be with her daughter. If you teach or know of someone who will teach the class for these dedicated students, it will be very much appreciated. The students love the class so much they don't want to see it dropped because we cannot find a teacher. We need your help.

March/April socials

The Council on Aging voted to combine the March and April therapeutic socials together to allow our disabled and older seniors who cannot get out in the evening to join their peers for a very enjoyable afternoon of entertainment. They therefore selected to go to the Sheriden Inn in Nashua by bus for a dinner and stage show. Because of the cost of the buses, we will be using school buses. If you prefer to use your own car let us know when you sign up. When we arrive, dinner will be served at noon. Before and during dinner there will be music for dancing. After dinner we will be entertained by a very funny comedian and a talented singer, singing our type of song. Sign up for this social will begin Friday, Feb. 15 at 9 a.m. An $8 non-refundable deposit will be required when signing up to help defray the cost of the afternoon.

Washington's Birthday

The Center will be closed Monday, Feb. 18, Washington's birthday. The minibus will not be on the road. Please make appointments accordingly. Lunches will not be delivered or served. If you cannot prepare a meal for yourself or have no family member who will make up a meal and take it to you, we suggest you double up on your meals this week, but remember when the driver arrives with the meals refrigerate the extra meal right away to prevent spoilage.

Grants for teachers

Five teachers in the Wilmington schools have been awarded $300 mini-grants by the Wilmington School-Business Partnership. The awards were presented by (from left) Len Tammaro of Continental Cablevision, Richard Palleschi of C.J. McCarthy Insurance, and Loretta Curtis of Textron. Teachers receiving the grants were Diane Flaherty of the Shawsheen School, Anna Kilfoyle of the Wildwood, Suzette Hall and Robert Mills of the high school, and middle schools music teacher Joseph Plassman.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending February 12, Wilmington police officers responded to 21 alarms, made 15 bank escorts, assisted other departments on three occasions, logged two assault complaints and made 11 arrests.

Wilmington fire log

Word of Caution

The Wilmington Fire Department at no time certifies safety of the ice on Silver Lake or any other body of water within our town. Open water, moving water, submerged objects and varying temperatures are all contributing factors which can make ice unsafe. It should also be noted unsafe conditions can be hidden by snow and can be found when least expected even after long periods of cold weather. Submersion in winter waters can cause immediate shock if not death. When someone skates, walks, or performs on ice other than artificial surfaces, they do so at their own risk.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

Again, for the third week in a row, you failed to print my letter. I thought, at least, after you bothered to call me about it that it surely was interesting enough to let the public judge for itself, its merits.

Given this, I was surprised to read your editor's reply to Mr. Edward Holmes. It seems like you really don't practice what you preach. Do you really have a clue to what you are doing, to what you think, and to the injustice you are dealing to the paper and to the people of this town. We deserve better.

Poison like your's should never be left to contaminate society, it should be treated.

Early in life I had to learn which end of the snake the head was on. I'm not sure about you, but I am sure you sure as hell are poison, keep up your brand of editing and you most likely will end up like the dog that is always chasing cans. It isn't around anymore.

Samuel D. LaFollette

Editor's reply: We thought we had addressed the problem on the phone. Sorry, Sam. —lfn formula worked out.

Smith said that even if someone does make a contribution, there was no way the commissioners could excuse anyone from paying betterments, assessed by law.

John Lucci wanted to know the cost of building part of the sewer. He asked if there was a ratio of benefits in relation to the funding.

Again, there was no formula.

Wilmington Recycling Notes

Local Recycling Hero

Spencer Cleaners

Spencer Cleaners, located in Wilmington's Colonial Park Mall at 35 Lowell St., has recently started a program to recycle the clear plastic garment bags used to protect your dry cleaning. Spencer customers are encouraged to return their used plastic bags when they bring in their next load of dry cleaning. The bags are deposited in a container at the customer counter. Spencer's bag supplier, Environmental Resins, Ltd., then takes the used bags ad remanufactures them back into new garment bags, thus avoiding more plastic waste filling up our landfills and polluting our environment.

Spencer also accepts those used wire hangers which may be overfilling your clothes racks. As long as the hangers are still in good shape, they are re-used by Spencer.

We salute Spencer Cleaners and its owner, Dan DiTucci for doing their part to motivate consumers to get into "the recycling habit".

This column spotlights Wilmington residents, businesses, civic groups, etc. who are doing their share to promote and participate in Wilmington's recycling programs. If you know of someone who should be recognized for their efforts, write to Tom Ollila, 183 Wildwood Street, Wilmington, MA 01887 or call 658-4858.

Catching up on winter tidbits

by Bill Conlon

No "main" story this week, folks, just an assortment of catchups and odd bits. The return of winter cold has me breathless with anticipation that maybe, just a slight hope, that we'll be ice fishing again before January of 1992..

I'm embarassed. All the warmth last week made me think nobody would to dare to hold an ice fishing derby, so I slept in Sunday. Around 11 a.m. I moseyed over to check Lake Mascuppic, just to make sure that an ice fishing derby scheduled that day had been cancelled.

Oops. The derby was on!

The Greater Lowell Fly Fishers did indeed hold their derby on the big lake in Dracut. There was ice for safe walking, but not enough ice for cars. Fine. Even three inches will do for walking, and one report said there were seven inches of ice in most places. Missed that one.

The GLFF derby, normally quiet events, had a controversy this time. Both sides had fair arguments, and both sides were wrong as well, so I'll dispense with names and stick to the facts as given. As I'm on good terms with both parties, I do hope they recognize that I'm saving them some embarassment by not naming them. Maybe I should have.

Seems that a member of the club was ice fishing in a party of four. Three were registered in the derby, but the fourth, a minor who didn't even need a license, wasn't signed up. The little girl, it was said, never went near bait or tipup all day.

A neighboring angler counted the number of tipups for the "three" in the party, and counted 17 instead of the legal fifteen. Hmm.

The neighboring angler got a bit cranky and complained, so he was given a fish by the member, to keep the peace if nothing else. Some said the fish was given for him to take home and eat, which sounds like an excuse to me. Giving him the fish, and his accepting it, was a bad move on both parts.

The neighbor brought the fish to the check-point, but he then decided not to weigh it in. Good move, or else he'd be disqualified since the fish wasn't his. The club member had already been to the HQ to tell officials of his argument on the ice. (The neighbor, incidently, had "had a few" -- not uncommon on the ice -- but he became cantankerous, too, according to club officials. I think his rudeness may have tainted the objectivity of the officials on this.)

Still, GLFF club president José Cambrils said he'd bring the issue up and speak to the member at their regular meeting, the next night, to instruct him to always sign up everybody in his party. If nothing else, José said, members of the club should avoid even a hint of stain on the club's good reputation. As a club member myself, I was ready to quit my membership if necessary to fairly report this. But I think I've done that, without having to quit.

Still, both sides were wrong and both sides were right, too.

Unfortunately, there is no derby rule in the club about unregistered anglers, and how can there be? The club can't very well stop outsiders from fishing the pond on the same day as the derby, but having nine guys in a party and only one signed up would be wrong too. It's a tricky situation, which gets trickier still if you try to disqualify somebody for fishing with (unregistered) friends.

Hopefully this won't happen again and the GLFF has told members to sign up everybody, for appearance sake if nothing else. Issue closed.

However, 103 anglers did sign up and the weather was icky warm all day. Tom Vayo took first place on a bass weighing 3 pounds, 12 ounces, worth $300. Second went to Ray Wood of Billerica for a 3-pound-2 pickerel; third went to Rene Noel for a 3-1 bass; fourth went to Mike Gath of Tewksbury (!) for a bass that weighed 2-pounds-6; fifth in the lineup was won by Debbie Noel for a 2-6 bass that was a half-inch shorter than Mike's; and sixth thru tenth places, all worth $25, went to Helen Bell of Dracut; Steve Cortez of Pepperell; Dave Lord of Lowell; Bob Carter of Billerica; and tenth place was shared by Tom Brainerd of Westford and Mike Pierog of N. Andover, both for pickerel that weighed one pound, 11 ounces.

The ice auger raffle was won by Walter Grady, whose winning stub came from the second derby.

The return of winter weather, by the way, has prompted the Greater Lowell Fly Fishers to consider a third derby this month, perhaps on the 24th. Stay tuned.

Got my first edition of Massachusetts Wildlife this week. While it isn't my habit to "plug" magazines, this one is different. Put out by the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries & Wildlife, this quarterly magazine has in-depth and intelligent pieces on the various plants and animals in Massachusetts. The one I received is the Fall 1990 edition, containing pieces on Massachusetts black bears and the opossum, among others. It's only $6 a year for four issues, and it is worth it. Good reading.

There is a major land move being considered in Tewksbury. Rep. Jim Miceli has filed legislation with the state to transfer some 408 acres of hospital land to a conservancy district, meaning it would become an authorized hunting (bow only kids, no shooting in Tewksbury), fishing and outdoorsy place. The focus of the eight parcels being considered in the transfer is roughly the corner of East and Maple, where Strongwater Brook crosses East Street. The land extends for a considerable ways north and south of there, but that's the rough idea, including the 179 acre parcel to the south, and a 58 acre piece to the north. If the bill passes, you'll be able to hike from north of Pinnacle Street almost to Tew-Mac airport. I'll provide the bill number once Miceli gets back to me, then tell your favorite state legislator to back it. Tewksbury Rod & Gun is already behind it!

The state came out with the listing of biggest fish in 1990, in the state's Sportfishing Awards program, and the winners were named February 9 at the Eastern Fishing & Outdoor Expo. Nobody from Tewksbury or Wilmington earned the gold, but the fish taken were staggering! The biggest bass went 9 pounds, 7 oz., from Lake Rohunta; there was an enormous (14 pound, 8) channel cat taken from Baddacook Pond out in Groton; a pickerel that weighed a whopping 16 pounds, 1 once, came from Otis Reservoir; and the top pike of the year was a 23-pounder out of Onota Lake in Western Mass.

While those numbers were pretty impressive, some are beatable. Top carp of 1990 was only 26 pounds, 12 ounces, out of the Connecticut River. The Merrimack routinely produces 20 pounders, so we've got our own big-carp factory handy.

Derby winners

Winners of a recent Merrimack Valley Bass Masters fishing derby on Lake Mascuppic were (l to r) Keith Franklin of Stow, Mass. in first; Marcel Lacombe of Westford; Peter Niven of Tewksbury in third; and Dave Beauchene of Dracut in fifth. Gerry Bouchard of Tyngsboro, who took fourth place, got away.

Yes, from Silver Lake

Bound for the wall is this 14-pound, 8-ounce pike, measuring 36 inches, caught February 5 from Silver Lake in Wilmington. Dan Sheehan (hefting) and Mike Morse, both of Tewksbury, said they were using just regular minnows when the monster struck. An even bigger pike, weighing over 16 pounds, is said to have been taken two days before from Silver Lake.

A nine pound bass, while nice, is a beatable fish, too. The top bass of all time in the Bay State was a 15-pounder, will be tough to beat, but nine pounds is "do-able" in ponds such as Forge in Littleton, and even the Merrimack River.

Top shad in 1990 was a 7 pound, 3 ounce fish, from the Connecticut River. Again, that can be beaten on the Merrimack.

Call Dan McGuiness at 792-7270 if you think you have a truly memorable fish. Monsters only, please.

Speaking of big fish, look at the photo nearby and tell me you want to go swimming in Silver Lake this coming summer. This 14.5 pike, in fact, fell two pounds short of one taken the previous week, a 16-plus pounder that stretched to 38 inches.

The state stocked northern pike into Silver Lake over a period of years, to cut down on the "rough" fish in the small puddle. Well, looks like the investment has paid off, hasn't it? Additional pike of 8- and 11-pounds came out of Silver Lake in the past few weeks, through the ice, so they're in there. Believe it.

The first annual Winter Carnival, by the Shawsheen Watershed Environmental Action Team (SWEAT) is planned for Saturday, February 16, from 1-4 at Camp 40 Acres in Wilmington. Events will include ice skating, sledding, a contest for the Most Unusual Sled, and orienteering (a hiking event). Take Route 125 in Wilmington, turn left onto Andover Street, and its ahead on your left. All free, bring the kids!

Operation Desert Storm

My brother had to go away, but he'll return most any day.

He had to go across the land,
to do his part on Arab sand.

My brother always does what's right,
for America he's proud to fight.

He holds himself with strength and pride, and you can see that in his stride.

He left his mother full of fears, with every blast she falls to tears.

He left his wife to hope and pray
He'd be home for Father's Day.

The day his unborn child is due,
a life so precious and so new.

He left me to sit and wait,
with love and hope I anticipate,

That any moment I may see,
my brother coming back to me!

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would like to offer an update to one of your front page stories from the January 23rd issue of the Town Crier "Developer faces 'uphill climb' with concom."

The small parcel of wooded land located at the intersection of Concord Street and the Boston and Maine railroad, where a local developer would like to construct another office building, is a very environmentally sensitive area along Lubbers Brook. This small parcel of land plays an important role in protecting the water resources of our area, both surface and groundwater. Not to mention the unique habitats it provides for the indigenous plants and animals.

The developer has paid consultants to tell us how insignificant this precious local resource is. I on the other hand, also an environmental professional (I am a hydrogeologist) can say that it is my opinion that they are mistaken. I do not feel that I am alone in my position. The Wilmington Water and Sewer Commission has sent a letter to the concom, being quite explicit why this area should not be disturbed. After attending the public hearings concerning the proposed development and listening to their comments, I also believe that at least several members of the conservation commission share my view, that this area should not be subjected to commercial development. The area is presently zoned residential and should remain that way!

I would at this time like to ask the residents of Wilmington to help me protect a small piece of the local environment which has been protecting them for years. Take a drive down Concord Street and look at the site. Ask yourself, do we really need another building and more traffic in town, when there are already so many empty buildings and cars now? Please attend the next public hearing concerning this matter on February 20, 1991 at 8:15 p.m. in room 9 at the Town Hall. It will only take about an hour of your time. Let the conservation commission know you don't want to see the Pandora's Box of commercial development along the banks of the fresh water marshes of Wilmington opened. Thank you.

George Lingenfelter

Letter addressed to Gov. William Weld

Dear Sir:

As employees of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at Tewksbury Hospital, we realize we must do our share to help the state at this time of fiscal crisis. I stress, "Our Share." If you, being independently wealthy, took a token salary of $1.00 a year, and any of your appointees who have outside income of over $70,000 a year work for $1.00 for one year, it would show good will to those of us who make far less than that amount.

You are asking people making $20,000 a year to take a 20 percent pay cut for 10 weeks. Fine. Have all judges and legislators take a 20 percent cut for 10 weeks. Let any pensioner receiving over $30,000 a year take a 20 percent pay cut for 10 weeks. Have every employee of the Commonwealth take a 20 percent pay cut for 10 weeks. Do not designate anyone as "essential" worker. If a job is not essential to the running of the state, it should not be filled.

Upon taking office you gave certain of your cronies 15 percent pay hikes. We do not think it right that you are asking those of us on the lowest level of the pay scale to bear the greatest burden in balancing the budget.

Yours United in Hope for Fiscal Responsibility

The American's Creed

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic, a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

"I therefore believe it is our duty to our country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

Four who have succeeded

Women firefighters

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Liking your job can make it easier to perform but if you're a woman firefighter, like is a necessity you must have to get through the rigors of training and on the job stress.

Kim DiOrio and Anne Topping of the Lynnfield Fire Department, Linda Giles of the Wilmington Fire Department, and Cathy Kelley of the Winchester Fire Department are the only females doing the work in the ten communities covered by Middlesex East, but they are not alone in the area.

Giles said "You have to want to do this job." She explained that the commitment starts as a women prepares herself for the Civil Service test, but has to continue as she stays in shape for the rigors of the job.

Lynnfield is not a Civil Service community so that DiOrio and Topping did not have to take the test. As a call firefighter Topping has also not attended the Fire Academy.

DiOrio, however, is a full-time firefighter and has attended the seven week course as have Giles and Kelley.

Even though Topping is the only one not to take the course she is doing the same work as the others. In Lynnfield, the full-time firefighters work the day shift Monday through Friday. On the off-hours (after 4:30 p.m. during the week and 24 hours on weekends) the call firefighters are on duty and respond from their homes. Many times they are also called in to fill a shift for vacations or sick days. The town has five full-time firefighters, including the officers and 37 people on the call force. Wilmington has a total of 32 people on the force. In Winchester the 45 person count includes the chief.

Of the four DiOrio and Giles report that they have received some signs of animosity. However, they both say that it has only come from one or two people in their respective departments. In DiOrio's case she said it was not from full-time firefighters but from call people.

As to Giles, she has had trouble with two male firefighters that are not in her group. Both DiOrio and Giles have minimized the problems.

"In the past some limits had to be set," Giles said.

She added, "I always thought it was a matter of proving myself. But, this past winter I had to accept that there was more."

DiOrio said "Some guys don't like a female here but don't say it out loud. What others feel about me being here I don't let bother me."

She added that for the most part "the guys here are good. We share everything (in the line of duty)."

DiOrio noted that most of the problems she had to overcome were caused by herself.

"I would psyche myself out of doing something but when it finally came to do it I could," she said.

On the positive side, Kelley and Topping both report that they have not had any problems at all and all four have said that their respective chiefs have been very supportive of their career choices.

Kelley noted that she first started as an auxiliary in Winchester. "When I tried to get on in 1974, it wasn't really well taken. It was kind of taboo."

She expressed her feeling that the men got to know her as an auxiliary and it has buffered her from any resentment once she went on full time.

Topping said that because she is a call person and not full time she is not a threat to any of the males on the force.

All of the women admit that they take some ribbing from colleagues, but for the most part that is a sign of acceptance.

Kelley said, "The ribbing is nc meant viciously. They do it t

WHERE'S THE FIRE...Kim DiOrio (l) and Anne Topping (r) decked out in their "turn out" gear are all ready to serve the Town of Lynnfield. DiOrio has 10 years on the force starting as a call firefighter and Topping has three years as a call firefighter. For Topping this is just one of her uniforms as she is also a school crossing guard and a civilian police and fire dispatcher. (Don Young photo)

Physical therapy strengthening the body

The human body performs an amazing array of tasks. At no time do you recognize this more than when it has been compromised. Whether the result of an injury or disease, a disability can be both frustrating and painful.

At Winchester Hospital, the Rehabilitation Services Department's ultimate goal is to assist patients' physical recovery and reentry into the community, home and work environment at the highest level of independence and self-sufficiency possible. "Treatment goals established by the physical therapist include preventing disability, relieving pain and restoring function," says Stephen Cox, Director of Rehabilitation Services. "To aid and maintain recovery, the physical therapist also provides patient education to involve the patient in his or her own care."

Low back pain is the most common disability in Americans age 45 and under. Backaches can result from poor posture, lack of exercise, obesity, arthritis, injury and infection. Many times, physical therapy is the best source of treatment available. For Judy Simmons, that was exactly what the doctor ordered.

"One morning I woke with pain in my hips and lower back," said Judy. "When the pain wouldn't go away, my physician recommended physical therapy. I started coming to Winchester Hospital in early September in 1989. Since then, I have felt a big improvement in my lower back. After practicing the exercises they taught me in physical therapy, I can actually feel my lower back muscles strengthening.

Linda Goldthwait was treated by a physician at Winchester Hospital who prescribed physical therapy for her Sciatica (back pain which spreads into the back of the thigh). During her treatment, two physical therapists worked with her. "They were very concerned with my pain," said Linda. "They took a personal interest in my needs. I was pleased with my treatment, but more importantly the Physical Therapists were personable. They explained the goals and treatments in a way that I could understand."

The Rehabilitation Services Department works with all age groups and a large variety physical disorders including Orthopedic, Neurological and Pediatric therapy. In addition to treating patient's at the hospital, the Physical Therapists offer educational programs for employer and community groups on prevention of back injury. The goal of these programs is to instruct individuals on the cause of the injury and how they can change their posture and behavior to minimize their chances of incurring a back injury. By doing simple exercises one can prevent back trouble or keep it from acting up in the future, says Stephen Cox.

One important subject Stephen Cox teaches in the program is how to lift correctly. "Most people focus on bending their knees to lift," says Stephen Cox. "Then they allow their lower back to round out backwards. However, it's important to keep your low back curved forward a little, just like you have it when you stand."

In recognition of National Physical Therapy Awareness Week, Winchester Hospital will offer free lectures on the prevention of back injury to community groups. For more information, call (617) 756-2360.

We Make Smiles That Last a Lifetime

We know that one of the signs of a happy mouth is a beautiful smile, but sometimes nature needs a little help. We also know that it takes a specialist, a professional whose career is devoted to making sure that the teeth and the jaw work and grow in harmony. Dr. George Lundstedt, DMD is our associate specialist responsible for orthondontics. He has been in practice for over 17 years, graduated from Tufts and Boston University Dental Schools, and is Board Certified in Orthondontics.

Doctors Coakley and Trainor believe that having quality specialists available like Dr. Lundstedt, is critical so that you will have the total range of specialists available for total dental health, both preventative and corrective.

To make an appointment for a complementary consultation to discuss the role of orthondontics for your child or yourself, call 935-8810.

About the towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

NORTH READING - "If they ever did a movie about North Reading, it would be 'The Fly That Was Never Swatted,'" says North Reading Selectman Edward Canney in the North Reading Transcript. "We're always talking about the same thing all the time."

In an attempt to "arrange an equitable compromise" which might please everybody, the Selectmen, Finance Committee and School Committee are trying to work out a space study committee that would scrutinize town use of all its municipal buildings, including schools and arrive at a comprehensive long-range plan.

Equal representation from all boards concerned is expected to avoid an "us versus them" attitude.

"My contention," says Selectmen Chair Stephen O'Leary, in the Transcript, "is we're far better off being part of the process than being on the outside, shooting it down."

WOBURN - The Woburn City Council is determined that a proposed settlement from National Amusements for the Showcase Cinema complex development be a no go - and an almost no show.

The settlement involved plans for four additional movie screens and 980 seats, a 125-room hotel and retail space. The problem centers on there being only one entrance and exit to the property.

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Housing Partnership, Wilmington Community Development Corporation, and local builders have come up with a plan to develop small town-owned land parcels, resulting in a Housing Access Program which would make quality homes available for about $60,000, with or without state funding assistance.

Under Housing Planner Bryan Wyatt's proposal, the small land parcels would be "packaged together" and offered to the most qualified but lowest bidder through a Request for Proposal.

The lots would be transferred to the WCDC - as was done with the affordable Everett Ave. home - and used to secure financing. The lots would then go to the builder who would sell them to new owners at an "affordable" price, all of which would be supervised by the non-profit WCDC and WHP.

READING - The Salmagundi Club - known in some circles as the Center for American Art - has awarded Reading artist Nathalie Nordstrand with the Winsor and Newton Award for Watercolor at its 1991 Annual Oil, Watercolor, Pastel and Sculpture Exhibition for her interpretation of the wild after-storm surf pounding the cliffs of Folly Cove, Cape Ann.

SENIOR CENTER - Seniors interested in television production recently had the opportunity to participate in a free eight-week, 16-hour, TV 19 course at Winchester's Jenks Center, on how to use TV cameras, video switchers and audio and lighting equipment; the goal being the nurturing of their mechanical and creative powers for the taping of senior center programs to be shown later on local cable.

REI offering Kayaking course

On Thursday, February 14, Tamsin Venn, author of the new guide book Sea Kayaking the New England Coast, will present travels from Connecticut to Maine.

Wednesday, February 20, a clinic with Sandy Gilbert will present a recent 12-day sea kayaking trip among mangroves and beautiful deserted islands. Situated along the Caribbean coast of Central America, Belize offers a perfect launching point to explore the second largest barrier reef in the world.

Clinics start at 7 p.m. at REI, Salem Street in Reading, Exit 40 off of Rte. 128. Call (617) 944-5103 for more information.

Donkey basketball game in Stoneham Sunday

Plenty of hilarious action and a good crowd are expected to keep the Greater Boston Academy gym buzzing when a Donkey Basketball Tournament is staged on Sunday, February 24 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Three games among four local teams will provide the entertainment for the afternoon, and advance ticket sales indicate a large crowd will be on hand for the wild tournament.

"Tickets have been selling very well," said ticket chairman Pierre Ramseier. "In fact - everything looks great."

Tickets will also be on sale at the door at $4 for adults and $3 for students. There will be no charge for children under 6 years of age. All proceeds will go to the Greater Boston Academy Maranatha project.

The first game of the single elimination tournament will feature a band of rough and ready riders known as the "Tail Twisters" and the select group of equestrians, "Jack Aces." After this classic battle has been waged, "Knee Squeezers" will collide with Jack Astronauts."

The winners of the two hardwood wars (or is it roars?) will go after the less-than coveted title in the championship game. Yet, many fans believe it is the donkeys who are the very pride of the court and the stars of the show. The talented and sportsminded animals are from the Buckeye Donkey Ball Company of Columbus, Ohio, and all of them know their way around a basketball court.

Donkey basketball is played with four donkeys and four riders on each team. One of the donkey teams is comprised of Beatle Bomb, Super Stupid, Elvis and Rigor Mortis. The other team is formed by Thunder Ball, Snuffy, Kilroy and Hone Pot, the world's buckin'est donkey.

Great Boston Academy is located on the grounds of New England Memorial Hospital, 20 Woodland Rd. in Stoneham. For additional information please call the school at (617) 665-9053.

Summer Youth Employment and Training Program

Employment Resources Inc. (ERI) of Cambridge once again invites local nonprofit agencies and departments of federal, state and city/town governments to participate in its annual Summer Youth Employment and Training Program (SYETP).

Proposal packets will be available in mid-February for those that would like to be considered as worksites or special project sites for disadvantaged youth, primarily ages 14 and 15, this summer. Applicants between the ages of 16 and 21 will receive assistance finding unsubsidized private sector placements for the summer.

Regular worksites provide supervision for one or more participants, who, in turn, perform specific duties over the summer. Participants are paid an hourly wage by ERI with funding from the federal Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA).

Special projects must serve a group of youth and may be either a specific work project, resulting in a tangible product or service, or an enhanced work project, integrating activities such as vocational exploration, health education, cultural or educational field trips. All special projects must have a minimum of 50% educational programming per week during the summer. Special project sites that are selected may receive funding for pertinent operational costs such as staffing, materials and supplies.

Representatives of interested agencies or departments may sign up to attend one of two informational workshops being held at ERI on February 20th at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. To reserve space at one of the workshops, contact ERI at (617) 494-1154 and ask for the summer program staff. Those who are interested and cannot attend a workshop should contact ERI to have a proposal kit mailed to them.

Women firefighters.

Of the four, DiOrio and Giles both have seniority as firefighters. DiOrio started with Lynnfield as a call person in about 10 years ago.

At the time she was working for an insurance company. She heard her older brother talking about his work as a call firefighter and became interested.

In 1987 the opening came for a permanent firefighter and DiOrio said that she decided to try for it.

She won her position over two males who were also applying.

"To accomplish that was a tremendous feat," she said.

She was the only women in 33 recruits in her class at the academy.

According to DiOrio, part of the excitement of the job is that she gets to drive everything from an ambulance to one of the trucks.

She notes that moving up in the ranks is part of her future plans, but that she does not feel ready for a command position as yet.

Her experience on the force has included a successful rescue that has received several write-ups in local newspapers.

Giles started her career as a firefighter as the only female on the paid staff of the Shippensburg, PA fire department.

That came as a result of an advertisement for an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT). Training for the job was provided by the former federal Comprehensive Training and Employment Act (CETA).

After getting on the job Giles said "I loved it."

She said "After the CETA funding ended, I came back up here. I couldn't get the work out of my mind."

In June, 1983 she took her Civil Service test and was appointed to the Wilmington Department in 1985.

Giles contacted a woman firefighter on the Lexington force and received some pointers on how to prepare herself for the physical test.

She had to requalify as an EMT and a friend taking the course with her set up an exercise course for the two of them to train on.

As part of the training, they borrowed some old hose from the Wilmington Department and practiced running up and down the street with it.

She has taken and passed the exam to become a lieutenant but said "right now I don't feel I want that."

As a mother of three - David, 16, Kristen, 12, and Paul, 10 - Giles has another concern to worry about.

Her mother watches the children while Giles is on duty.

She said "When they were young there was not much reaction to my job. Now when I go out it's `be careful. I hope you have a quiet evening."

Giles said that she brings her children to the station where they have fun, but she knows that they worry about her.

While on duty Giles has a separate restroom to use. However, the bunks for overnight shifts are all in one room.

She notes that everyone wears t-shirts and shorts to bed and she goes out of her way to not wear any thing provocative on the job.

In Winchester, Kelley is not treated any differently than any other firefighter on an overnight shift. They all have separate sleeping quarters.

Topping as a call firefighter responds from her home. She shares the worry of being a single, working parent with Giles.

Topping has four children - her twins Michael and Matthew, 9, Mark, 6, and Mitch, 4.

She will also take her kids and their friends to the station to see where mommy works.

Kelley and Topping share the feeling of always having wanting to be on the fire department. However, both had other careers first.

Kelley started as an electro-cardiogram technician.

She then took a job as a civilian dispatcher when the post opened up. From their she took the test to become a regular firefighter.

She joined the force in 1986 after being on the auxiliary since 1974.

Kelley emphasized that she is not a women's liberationist.

One of the reasons she took the job was "I have always been the type of person who wants to help. Now I can do something about that."

Another nice part of her job is that she sometimes gets to go out to local schools as part of the fire prevention program.

Kelley said that during those times young girls see a female firefighter and realize that they can be one too.

One common problem the four of them have is uniforms. Although some manufacturers are starting to make womens sizes, they are still hard to find and take some time to order.

Roving — dan ferullo

(EDITORS NOTE: Last weeks' Roving column appearing in this newspaper had several transpositions of type making the column very difficult to read. We are re-running this column this week in its entirety and in its correct order.)

One of the greatest and best buddies, a fellow by the name of Chris Jones, who lives in Winchester, England, called us the other morning to tell us he was in town for a few days, and to see if it would be possible to get together for dinner.

It is always a pleasure to hear from this chap from the UK, and we leapt at the opportunity to meet with him to catch up on what's been happening in his life. An international sales manager for a large computer company, which is based in Hampshire County, England, the same county in which Chris lives, our British friend informed us he was staying at the Marriott Hotel, in Burlington. We asked Chris if he wanted to meet at the hotel. He replied he would rather meet elsewhere, since he had grown tired of eating at the same restaurant. Instead, we agreed to meet at the 99 Restaurant & Pub, on Mishawum Road, in Woburn. The restaurant has a warm and friendly environment, and resembles the kind of pubs Chris likes to frequent when he is back home.

We caught up with Chris that night. Unfortunately, the time we'd picked was the busiest hour of the dinner rush. We gave a name to the hostess, then, at Chris's behest, moved toward the bar. This was when things became amusing.

There were no seats available.

Chris, who is fifty-three and physically resembles the actor, Dudley Moore, caught the attention of the bartender. The immaculately dressed Brit politely ordered a round. The bartender glanced at me (we've known each other for some time, and we exchanged hellos), then back at Chris, and replied, "I'm sorry, sir, but Woburn laws prohibit serving anyone standing. You'll have to wait for a seat."

With a sudden, blank, almost confused look on his face, Chris told the bartender, "Is that so? Well, thank you for informing me of that. I didn't know." Those Brits are polite as heck.

He then turned back to us, and asked, "Is the bartender serious, or is he kidding? You really cannot be served here unless you are seated!"

We informed Chris that that, indeed, was the case. He said, "I've never heard of such a thing." He asked us the reasoning behind the law, to which we replied, "There are a few reasons for it, actually. The city fathers thought the law would help to control crowds inside restaurants better. It also encourages people to eat food." Then we told him about Woburn in the old days, when there were many taverns and bars throughout the city. "A lot of people who were around then didn't want to see taverns and barrooms crop up again, so when liquor licenses became available, the city fathers decided it would be best to attach a lot of restrictions to them," we told him.

Chris glimpsed around the restaurant. "You're right," he said. "No one standing has a drink in his hand. Well, I guess we'll just have to wait for our table."

The wait wasn't very long - about twenty minutes. The attractive hostess sat us in a quiet booth, where we were able to chat and catch up on what's been occurring in our lives. When we finished our meals, Chris suggests we go to another place to enjoy an after dinner drink. At that moment, it occurred to me to have a little fun with Chris. This is what followed:

We drove to the Ground Round, in Stoneham, and when we arrived, Chris regarded us in a suspicious manner. "I thought we might go somewhere rather fancy," he indicated. "This place looks a lot like the place we just left."

We told him that it was best to kill time there, and later we could take in a more luxuriant atmosphere. He amiably agreed.

Once inside, we found seats without delay. That pleased Chris, who wondered aloud if we were going to face the same restrictions there as we faced in Woburn. We assured him that that wasn't the case.

The bartender brought us our after-dinner drinks. She asked if we wanted to look at a menu, and we graciously refused, indicating that we'd just eaten dinner elsewhere.

After we finished the drinks, which we sipped for some time, Chris called the bartender over. He asked for one more of the same, to which the bartender noted, "I'm sorry, sir, but you'll have to order food in order to get another drink. It's a town ordinance."

Chris smiled, then turned his attention to us. "This is a joke, isn't it, guys?" he said. "You put the bartender up to this, didn't you?"

We chuckled, then told him, no, that that wasn't the case at all. "Stoneham has a whole different set of laws, Chris," we added.

"You know, guys," he said, still gleaming, "back home in Winchester, England, a fellow can go to a pub, order a black and tan, and then another and another. He can order food, if he wants, or he can just drink. Over here in the states, you Yanks make going out for a pint a rather arduous task."

We laughed, and agreed. "But you have to keep in mind that we are attempting to prevent a lot of innocent people from getting hurt in drunk driving accidents," we said.

"I know that," he said. "When I think about it, I must agree that it is a good thing."

At that point, we decided to leave. Our good natured fun with Chris was not over. We drove to Burlington, to a restaurant called the Dandelion Green. Chris immediately liked the decor of the place, which features an inviting lounge that is separate from the dining room. As we entered the room, Chris looked around, then asked, "I don't see the bar, fellows."

"That's because there isn't one here," we said.

"No bar!" he exclaimed. "That's rather odd, isn't it?" Then he paused and added, "O.K., pray tell, what sort of crazy law are we dealing with here?"

We proceeded to tell him that sit-down bars are not allowed in Burlington. "I'm confused," he replied. "In other words, in Burlington, you have to be standing to drink?"

"Or be seated at a table."

We went on to explain that there are exceptions to these laws. "Take local hotels, for instance. You can sit at a bar in one of them, because they are licensed differently from restaurants. That's why you can sit at the bar inside the Marriott, but at the Dandelion Green you have to stand or grab a table."

The lounge in the restaurant was very busy, so we opted to try another place. That place was also located in Burlington.

"We're taking you to a very nice restaurant," we told Chris. "It's called the Cafe Escadrille."

"I've been there before," he informed us. There was a pregnant pause, then he announced that he'd been there on previous trips to the states.

"Hey, wait a minute," he said. "They have a sit-down bar there, and they're in the town of Burlington. I thought you said there were no sit-down bars in Burlington?"

"Well, Chris, there is an exception to every law, I guess."

Chris chuckled, then said, "One of these days, chaps, you Yanks are going to pay me a visit in England, and the first thing I'm going to do is show you how less confusing our bloody laws are. You Yanks make it down right difficult to enjoy yourself around here."

We reminded our British friend from whence our conservative influences came. "Remember," we said, "this is where the Pilgrims landed."

HOME STUDY COURSE ON NUTRITION

Helping a child learn to eat nutritious foods is one of the most important responsibilities a parent has. A lifetime of nutritionally sound eating habits can make a difference for health. Nutrition can help a child deal with physical and emotional stresses that are part of everyday living.

A six-lesson home study course concerning nutrition for young children is available from Nancy C. Stutzman, Home Economist with the Middlesex County Cooperative Extension Office in Concord.

This course will examine: if children really need vitamin supplements; sensible snack ideas; good food sources of iron; what cholesterol is; how to cut down on sugar; how to establish healthy eating habits; reading food labels.

Concerned parents or teachers of preschoolers are encouraged to read the lessons and complete the exercises for review. To register for this six-lesson course, send a check for $5 payable to the University of Massachusetts by March 15th to Nancy Stutzman, Home Economist, Middlesex County Cooperative Extension, 105 Everett Street, Concord, MA 01742.

COLLEGE OFFERS FREE TAX RETURN HELP

Students from Bunker Hill Community College will be preparing tax returns free-of-charge.

The tax return assistance will be provided by about 30 students who take part in the nation-wide Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program under the direction of Ed Kerr, business professor at Bunker Hill Community College.

"Bunker Hill has the most active VITA group in the country," said Kerr who added that Bunker Hill students who take part in the program do so as part of the requirements for accounting majors at the college. "It's the best course they will ever take in their career because VITA helps students learn how to work with people, develop self-confidence and put into practice what they've learned in the classroom."

Kerr said BHCC students prepared tax returns for more than 4,400 people last year. The free service could save roughly $75 to $150 that taxpayers might pay if they chose to have the service provided by a tax-return business.

"The work of Dr. Kerr and the students is recognized as an exemplary program in the VITA network," said Piedad Robertson, president of BHCC. "They are all to be commended for the work they do in providing this valuable community service."

Bunker Hill students will provide tax return assistance at Bunker Hill Community College lobby: Mondays, 9 to 11 a.m. and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.; Tuesday,s 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Wednesdays, 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.; Thursdays, 8 to 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 8 p.m.; Fridays, 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Last spring, the Lannan family had a baby.
Yes, the whole family. The lives of fathers, brothers and sisters are forever touched by the new addition.

From the moment the Lannans chose New England Memorial for the birth of their baby, they felt the genuine warmth and involvement of our OB staff. NATIONAL VISITING NURSE WEEK FEBRUARY 17-25

Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East is one of 52 visiting nurse associations across the state celebrating National Visiting Nurse Association Week in Massachusetts, February 17-23. Theme for the week is "Visiting Nurses and Much More...A Tradition of Caring for All Ages."

Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East will observe its 90th anniversary next year. Founded in 1902, the agency's principal service area: Stoneham, Wakefield, Woburn, Wilmington, North Reading and Reading. Today surrounding towns all receive the agency's home health services as well.

Committed to continuing this tradition in the 90's, the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East serves all ages, not just the elderly but infants, children, teens, young adults and up. The non-profit agency's comprehensive services include: home health aide, nursing, physical, occupational and speech therapy, social work and nutrition. Special programs of Middlesex-East: Hospice, Maternal and Child Health and, the recently added, Psychiatric Nursing.

Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East services have expanded and grown to incorporate many advanced technologies now available in the home, such as intravenous therapy, special pediatric care, and lab work.

The future presents challenges for the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East. With the increased cost of providing health care, insurance cutbacks and a burgeoning elderly population, the coming years also bring a renewed commitment to total patient care. In the past several years, Middlesex-East has had to go out into the community and fundraise for the care of the needy ill. Response was "overwhelming" according to Jacquelyn Galluzzi, Executive Director.

"We have 10% of our patient population in financial need. Our fundraising drive this year will climax at the end of February, with the general public receiving an appeal through the mail, and with our fourth annual Phonathon being held February 25, 26, 27 and 28,"

Call VNA of Middlesex-East at (617) 438-3770 for service or for information on home health. A brochure and newsletter are available to the public without charge. Agency headquarters are at 12 Beacon Street, Stoneham.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—The Exxon Chemical Corporation has funded a three-year science project in the Stoneham Public Schools which might well see them used as a model for implementation of the program, a project of "Chemicals, Health, Environment and Me" and "Chemical Education for Public Understanding."

All thanks to middle school science teacher Liz Sorrell who attended a training institute at the University of California at Berkeley on teaching chemistry in the middle school, using micro-chemistry and issue-based problem-solving - and then wrote a grant proposal to Exxon.

The first $5,000 of the grant will be used for project director Sorrell to train 22 grade four, five and six teachers via a two-day workshop, including all classroom supplies and ongoing support from Sorrell.

Phase two will train all grade seven, eight and nine science teachers in the micro-chemistry modules, including supplies.

Phase three will include training, update and replenishing of supplies, all geared to teaching students to solve real problems in science.

—The Reading School Committee has endorsed new rules - developed by Reading High Principal Dr. Mark Piechota and the Student Advisory Committee - designed to combat smoking in school lavatories, mostly girls' lavs'.

The rules would allow a faculty filled lavs' and give those names to the assistant principals. Known smokers would be warned that if their names were recorded a second time, they would receive three detentions. Students who give false names will be assigned in-school suspensions and students caught with lit cigarettes will be suspended for three days.

The system was successfully field-tested.

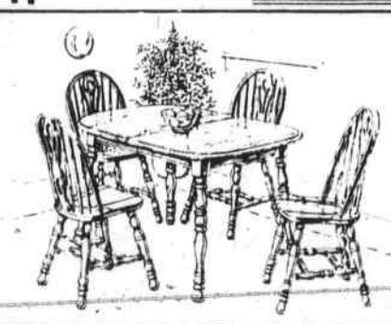

—In response to an increased number of foreign students in area communities, the Woburn School Committee has established a task force to help integrate foreign students into the school system and make the transition to America and the English language as easy as possible.

The task force consists of principals, administrators and teachers at the elementary, middle and high school levels.

—With honor students and a video in tow, Wakefield's Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School Director of Pupil Personnel Services Arthur W. Parlin has been visiting area middle and junior high schools with a presentation for eighth grade students on the benefits of a vocational-technical high school education - and an invitation to tour Metro Tech.

For more information, call the guidance office there at (617) 246-0810.

MOVIES

"Once Around" "The Grifters"

by Rochelle Flynn

"Once Around" Starring Richard Dreyfuss, Holly Hunter, Danny Aiello. Directed by Lasse Hallstrom. Written by Malia Scotch Marmo. Produced by Amy Robinson, Griffin Dunne. Rated R.

Director Lasse Hallstrom, the Swede who infused such warmth and truth into "My Life as a Dog," was not able to summon up that same cinematic magic for his first American flick. While "Once Around" remains an entertaining movie, it is as uneven as the Boston accents assumed by members of the cast.

Holly Hunter plays Renata, the eldest daughter in a close-knit Italian family. Depressed after being dropped by her boyfriend, right on the heels of her younger sister's wedding, Renata hightails it to the Caribbean, where she plans to take a job selling time-shares. Instead of embarking on a new career, she meets a flamboyant and successful salesman, Sam Sharp (Richard Dreyfuss). He is at least 20 years older and they would appear to have little in common, but it's love at first sight for both of them.

While romance figures heavily, the rest of the movie is mainly concerned with Sam's relationship to Renata's family. He's loud, generous, obnoxious and romantic. Her family doesn't know what to make of him. Sure, Sam is overbearing, but they generally seem to have fun with him. Then, all of a sudden, his exuberance is "killing them." This lack of cohesiveness - due in large part to Malia Scotch Marmo's unsatisfying script - makes it difficult to really connect with the characters.

RENATA BELLA (HOLLY HUNTER) AND SAM SHARP (RICHARD DREYFUSS) experience the joys and sorrows and passion that make life worth living in Universal Pictures "Once Around."

Some of the scenes are quite touching, others humorous, but it's all rather inconclusive and leaves you wanting for more. Hallstrom's presence is best felt in the quieter scenes, and not in the manic comedy that never quite clicks. The richest moments in the film are reflected across Danny Aiello's face. As Renata's sentimental, but powerful father, Aiello is graceful and loving, able to convey much about his troubled heart with a grimace or a wounded look.

As for Dreyfuss and Hunter, there are some sparks between them, but Hunter's weird accent is hard to get past - she sounds like Boston via the Bronx. And Dreyfuss is so unrestrained you want to drop a couple of valium into his ever present glass of vodka. You just never feel the heat these two generated in "Always." Because their relationship proceeds faster than the speed of light, you can see that ending coming toward you with equal force.

The film is hardly devoid of poignancy or laughter, it's just that Hallstrom didn't blend this brew evenly. He did, however, capture all the beauty in Boston, displaying the skyline and the Charles to their full advantage. As for his bittersweet American debut - not bad, but we expected more.

"The Grifters" Starring Angelica Huston, John Cusack, Annette Bening. Directed by Stephen Frears. Produced by Martin Scorsese, Robert Harris, James Painten. Screenplay by Donald Westlake. Based on the novel by Jim Thompson. Rated R.

Graft and corruption have never looked so good, felt so real or pulsated with such primal urgency as in this film adaptation of Jim Thompson's noirish novel.

Adapted for the screen by Donald Westlake, who has always had an ear for language, and directed by Stephen Frears, who has an eye for the offbeat, this film draws your attention like a three alarm blaze. The fire fueling these characters are emotions so raw they practically rub off on the screen.

Angelica Huston plays Lily, a travelling woman who plays long shots at race tracks to keep the odds balanced in favor of her bookie boss, a frightening sadist played by Pat Hingle. Her son, Roy (John Cusack) is a mere 14 years younger than Lily. Roy is also a grifter, only he plays short cons, never taking the chance on a high stake swindle. Roy's involved with Myra (Annette Being), a woman who lives by her wits and loves a good con when she can get one.

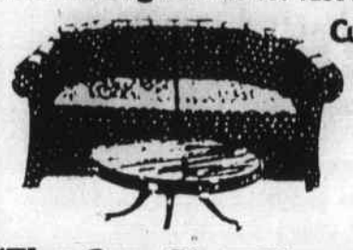

These three make for an interesting triangle. Huston is the most commandeering of the three, a statuesque woman in a platinum wig and a backbone made of steel.

Just as the storyline draws us into a world of spiralling danger and limitless corruption, the characters hypnotize us with their psychological tics. Huston, using finely tuned body language and a stare that could chill you to the core, is nothing short of amazing as the clever, controlled Lily. Bening, also a physical actress, bounces and giggles and seduces in a way that is as tempting as Huston's performance is mesmerizing. Cusak is not lost in the shuffle. His economical and cynical turn as a man caught in an emotional hurricane is both haunting and tragic.

The whole claustrophobic package is much more than a tribute to the great film noirs of long ago. Director Frears re-invents the genre with a timelessness born of primitive instinct and seductions so deadly they'll make you cringe in your seat. "The Grifters" is as close to a perfect movie as you will find these days, from it's retro-Forties score and edgy photography to its bleak lack of sentimentality and inky humor.

When Chris took a hit playing soccer, his mom was on the ball. Christopher Irving gets a kick out of playing soccer. And every once in a while, a cleat lands in the wrong place. In fact, not long ago he was hurt twice in two weeks. But his mom took it in stride and brought him to the Woburn Walk-In Center. We're happy to report that Chris needed nothing more serious than stitches on either occasion. But if other problems had surfaced, we would have handled them fast. That's because our affiliation with Winchester Hospital puts all the expertise of a major medical facility behind us. So if you happen to have an accident-prone athlete in the house, try not to worry. We know the score.

ANTHONY MANCONI

Folks, I don't think I've ever heard a more beautiful ecumenical hymn than "Let There Be Peace On Earth and Let It Begin With Me!" If only we would try to put those words and the others in that hymn into everyday practice, brothers and sisters what a wonderful world this would be.

Bill McGarr asked Don Harris, "Do you believe in justice?" "I sure do," Don replied, "I believe that I'm 'just-as' good as you!" Fr. John Crispo called the usher over and said, "There's a man asleep in the third pew - go and wake him up." "With all due respect Father," the usher replied, "You put him to sleep, I think you should wake him up." Most of the time the tv weather men and women forecasters are right on the money with their weather reports but last week was an exception. I couldn't go to work Thursday because of the five and a half inches of partly cloudy on my driveway.

Bob Burns, manager of the Woburn Elks, went to an eye clinic last week. He walked into a room where a pretty nurse was combing her hair in front of a mirror. "I have to have my eyes examined," he explained. "I should say you do!" she snapped, "You are in the ladies room!" Later the doctor said, "Mr Burns, do you have contacts?" "Yes, I do. I know Mayor John Rabbitt real well, Mr Paul Haggerty is a personal friend of mine and Grace Boutwell has been a friend for many years." "Never mind that, can you read the chart on the wall?" "I can't pronounce the words, Doc but I can tell you what the letters are." The doctor excused himself to get a couple of aspirins, then asked, "Does anyone in your family use glasses?" "They all do except Uncle Dinny who drinks straight from the bottle." After that the doctor went to therapy, the nurse had a lock put on the ladie's room door and Bob went to have his eyeglass prescription filled.

Vinny Harrington of Reading was taking an old Grandfather's Clock to a repair shop when he bumped into a woman shopper on the sidewalk, knocking a parcel out of her hand. "Oh, excuse me," Vinny said, "I'm sorry. Can I help you pick it up?" "No thank you, but tell me young man, why the heck don't you wear a wrist watch like everyone else does?" I asked Richie Hamel, "Do you know how the trains run from Tewksbury to Boston?: "No, I don't, he replied. "Well, Richie," I said, "there's a set of railroad tracks and the locomotive and passenger cars have wheels." That's as far as I got folks, Richie just ran away from me - he couldn't take any more.

Mario DiMino stopped his car and asked a pretty young lady standing at a bus stop in Stoneham Square, "Want a ride Cutie?" "Are you going north?" she asked. "Yes I am." "Good," she shouted, "Give my regards to the Eskimos!" I guess folks that you know I'm a beachcomber. Early last fall I went to the beach one morning and asked an elderly gentleman standing near the shore, "How's the water?" He smiled and said, "Lukewarm." I ran into the surf and dove under an in-coming wave. I got up and then ran out of the water half frozen. "Hey," I shouted, "I thought you said the water is lukewarm?" "Well," the old gent replied, "It luk-a-warm to me!"

Grantland Rice said, "It's not whether you win or lose that counts but how you play the game." Any coach can tell that Grantland Rice surely never had a new contract coming up or a vocal alumni on his back. Supervisor Willie Cobb sent Gary Hagen, John Ridings and Tom Kelly to investigate and inspect for the FDA, a sardine canning factory in Maine. Gary asked a worker why he was chopping off the heads of the sardines before they were packed. The fish cutter looked at Gary then said, "Young man, that's so they don't bite each other in the can!"

Father Joe, looking over the congregation said, "I see a man here this morning who I know is living the life of wine, women and song. If I don't see a $5 bill in the collection, I'm tempted to revel his name next Sunday." When the money was counted later there were four $5 bills and a $2 bill with a note attached that said, "I'm sorry but I'm $3 short. I promise to bring them next Sunday." As we get older some of us become forgetful. We can't remember names, forget to take our medicine and some don't remember what day of the week it is. My friend George Gould was coming out of his house this morning and I said, "Good morning George." "Hi Chipper," he replied, "B-r-r-r it's cold this morning." "You shouldn't feel cold - you have your winter underwear on." "How the heck do you know that?" he exclaimed. I smiled, then said, "George, you forgot to put your pants on!"

Personality Winners: Joan (Wandless) Tuney, Jean (Doyle) O'Donnell, Majorie (Court) Yeager, Harry Lynch, Bill Muse, Joe Northrop, Dave Bicknell, Richard Sharp D.M.D. and Bonnie Weiss, all of Stoneham; Lion's Host Club Celebrates, Pres. Paul Meaney, William Sullivan, Gail Meaney, Marie Palage, Edna Fuller, Bernice Sullivan, Betty Logue, Norma Varey, Rose Marashio, Claire McLaughlin, all of Woburn; Gary and his lovely wife Peg LaPierre (Gary, you probably remember me calling Dave Maynard as "The Beachcomber?"), Fire Capt. Jim and his wife Kathy McClory, Ken Stache, George Richard, Barbara Griffin, Lisa Memmolo, Phil DiNapoli and his son Ralph, Becky Croft, Amy Wettergreen, Rebecca Sutherland, Shannon Rea and Katherine Murphy, all of Reading; Dora Hirtle, Carolyn Hall, Leonard and Kathleen Wheelock, Richard and Diane Buttaro, Jennifer Patterson, Jill Twombly, Sarah Philips, Toni Marie Burtt and Ed Sargent, all of Wilmington.

Also, Laura Foley, Kristin Kent, Meredith Lawrie, David MacElhiney, Jennifer Stys, Lisa Morelli, Patricia Nelson, Joyce Tibbets, Claire Tremblay and Steven White, all of Tewksbury; Fire Chief Fred Shaw, Firefighter Tom Harris, Town Clerk Betty J. Vullo, Stephanie Spears, Atty. John Washburn, Atty. Lisa Palagreco, Jane Cashman, Jacqueline Casey and Matthew and Ann Marie Robinson, all of North Reading; Mel Letsring, Brian Feeney, Frank Barry, Frank Gazzo, Joe Lisacki, Dave Ryan, Brian LaCarbonara, Mike Capone, Paul Quattrocchi and Brian Lees, all of Wakefield; Joe Bellino, Lucille Bourque, Jane d'Entremont, Don Erickson, William Boivin, Mark Tseng, James DiNovo, Pamela MacKill, Alvis Jordans and Richie Hamel, all of Winchester; Fr. Robert Doherty, Al Pymm, Kenny and Terrie Kirckland, Saul Ziner CPA, Joseph and Peter Margi, Walter Flaherty, John Hand, Leland Preble and Diane Higden, all of Burlington; Joseph DiPietro D.M.D. and his lovely wife Regina, Calvin Scribner and William McDermott of the Metro Police and Joseph and Marylin Bianchi, all of Lynnfield.

Kathy was going to have her face lifted but it was easier to lower her body six inches. Try this one yourselves - ask someone to describe a spiral stairway. I'll bet not one person can do that without using his or her hand and a finger rotating around and around.

Super Star of the week is Phil DiNapoli of Reading.

A SOLDIER TALKS TO GOD

Dear God, high up in your Heaven
In your Kingdom so far away
Won't you listen for just a moment
To hear what I have to say

I can't kneel down like I should, God,
For there isn't time for that
'Cause I'm on my way to meet the foe
And maybe I won't get back

We have to wipe out a nest of the enemy
And mind you, I'm not afraid,
But please make me score a bullseye
When I toss that hand grenade

The enemy are lying in waiting
Up there around the curve
But when they see our bayonets flashing,
Please, God, make them lose their nerve

Make our men be brave and courageous
For it's freedom and peace we seek,
And as for the enemy - well it's ok
To make them sort of timid and weak

For you see, they started this thing, God
But we'll bring it to an end
And with your help and guidance
We'll crush those Supermen

But we're nearing that spot, now, getting closer
Funny -- no one is moving about
Well, I guess that's all for now, God
'Till we wipe the enemy out

But hark! What's the Captain saying?
Every - last - one - is dead?
Someone else has beat us to punch?
O God, You heard every word that I said

Dorothy C. McDonough

THE FIRST PART OF THE BODY THAT MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY AFFECTS.

It's hard to smile when you lose the ability to walk. To play. To draw pictures. To climb a tree.

But that's what happens when a child has muscular dystrophy.

"Muscular dystrophy" is the name for a group of diseases that weaken and destroy the muscles. The disorders are progressive, so things get worse over time. The muscle loss can't be stopped. And it can't be reversed.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is striving to cure muscular dystrophy. And on Christmas Eve of 1987, MDA researchers announced a landmark advance: discovery of the cause of the most terrible form of muscular dystrophy, Duchenne.

Now a giant step toward curing these dread diseases has been taken. And MDA researchers are forging ahead, racing to save the children stricken today.

MDA receives no government grants or fees for services — its work is funded entirely by private donations. You can help MDA fight muscular dystrophy and dozens of other muscle diseases by sending a tax-deductible contribution today.

Don't wait until a child's smile reminds you of all the children who have stopped smiling. Please send your donation today.

Science Fiction Film Festival on tap this weekend

There's nothing like 24-hours of movies to help you escape both the war and the recession. Enter the doors of the Coolidge Corner Theatre in Brookline and nothing more real than moonmen and monsters will be allowed into your psyche from noon on Sunday February 17-to noon on Monday.

The festival's coordinator, Garen Daly, has programmed the 16th Annual 24-Hour Science Fiction Film Marathon (SF/16) for the 500 or so movie buffs expected to arrive from all over the country toting blankets, bottled water and ray guns. Second generation viewers are expected this year, as is the return of a woman from New Jersey who is completing a sociological/anthropological study of sci-fi nuts.

Daly, who has been with the festival since SF/2 in 1977, appeases this crowd with 24 hours of retro-techno flicks, trailers, shorts, contests and guest speakers. This year Stuart Gordon, director of "Re-Animator" and "Robot Jox" is expected. Last year Mike Jitlow ("The Wizard of Speed and Time") relayed an amusing account of the film industry to a crowd consisting of the Martian Liberation Organization (MLD) and several hundred other fans who didn't quite feel the need to don costumes for the event.

The MLO, along with leader Major Tom, has been a marathon mainstay since SF/5. Major Tom, a.k.a. Tom Chenelle, explained that the 55 member MLO "is a group of freedom fighters from planet Mars, on vacation." Like all hard-core members of the MLO, Major Tom show up in standard uniform - a bright red jump suit decorated with a red circle and a large black lightening bolt running through it. A few beret-wearing members carry ray guns, but Major Tom doesn't need to, because he is the Ozone Commander and whose "specialty" is mind control.

Others who show up with more than just a six-pack of Jolt cola and a pillow are the Bee People, about 20 folks who all where antennae. The Young Republican's from Outer Space don't wear their tuxedos much anymore, but still sport a great name. And then there are the Jims, a group of men who share Jim as their first or middle name.

According to Daly, the trick to programming a successful festival for such an unusual crowd is to make sure the first flick explodes with atmosphere, really drawing the audience into the spirit of the event. So, this year's opener will be "Total Recall." Not anyone's idea of high art, but it does maintain an intense energy level. All in all, you'll notice a general, if sometimes meandering theme of aliens and atomic war in the films.

The time capsule will be resealed this year, as it was noticed at SF/15 that alien beings in the form of mice had chewed their way into the five-year old time capsule. Flight Kits will be distributed containing such goodies as Gummy Worms, in honor of "Tremors," Atomic Fire Balls and a description of all the films. There is an annual paper plane throwing contest as well as trivia quizzes and a traditional showing of the animated short "Duck Dodgers" in the 24th and-a-Half Century."

Expect to blast off at noon with director Paul Verhoeven's 1990 flick Total Recall, in which Arnie Does Mars. Phillip K. Dick wrote the original story to this in-your-face adventure in which Arnold Schwarzenegger fights the effects of mind-tampering while helping out Martian revolutionaries. Lots of action, violence and profanity.

A homage to 1950's horror classics, Tremors (1990, directed by Ron Underwood) features crackerjack special effects, sharp humor and lots of imagination. Kevin Bacon and Fred Ward star as handymen in Perfection, Nevada who really should have left town before the giant, flesh-eating earthworms arrived. Also from last year is director Sam Raimi's Darkman in which Liam Nesson plays a mild-mannered scientist badly disfigured by the hulking, evil Larry Drake. Neesom consequently goes insane and fights around all those plot holes.

High Schlock can be found in 1953's Robot Monster directed by Phil Tucker, who reportedly made this howler for $580. The alien (a guy in an ape suit with a diving helmet over his head) is sent to earth to wipe out the last six people, who all happen to be living in Bronson Canyon. Has to be seen to be (dis)believed. Ditto for the 1976 Hong Kong flick Infra-Man, directed by Hua-Shan. An Oriental mishmash in which the Princess Dragon Mom (no kidding) and her hoard of demons try to take over the world. The bionic, badly-dressed Infra-Man is on the side of good. This cheapo sci-fi has oodles of Kung Fu action, monsters and corny, dubbed dialogue.

On a higher artistic level is The Time Machine, directed by George Pal in 1960. This stylish adaptation of the H.G. Wells' classic picked up an Academy Award for special effects. Rod Taylor plays a sweet, somewhat naive 19th Century scientist who jumps into his little time machine and plays beat the clock, checking out several possible futures along the way. His final destination is the year 802,701, a bleak time in which Yvette Mimieux and the beautiful Elois serve, and are served to, the cannibalistic Morlocks. Escapism is rarely so pure.

Project Moonbase (1953, directed by Richard Talmadge) is a futuristic story set all the way in 1970! Scientists are sabotaged after travelling to the moon to establish a colony. Interestingly, both the commander of the mission and the President of the United States are women. Such progressiveness was of course tempered by a Fifties sensibility, as their outfits are ridiculously sexy. Daly said we have to keep in mind that science fiction has traditionally drawn a large segment of its population from those males who have a 14- to 15-year old mindset.

The story is familiar in Earth Vs. the Flying Saucers (1956, directed by Fred F. Sears) as humans misinterpret a message for peace and open fire on alien shops, resulting in an invasion of all the major tourist attractions of Washington, DC. The matter-of-fact presentation and Ray Harryhausen's special effects raise it just above its B origins.

boasts an interesting cast, as co-stars include Jackie Coogan and Johnny "The Rifleman" Crawford.

Two entries from guest speaker Stuart Gordon are 1985's Re-Animator and the area premiere of last year's Robot Jox. The latter is a futuristic battle flick in which two warriors don high tech battle armor and fight to the death. "Re-Animator" is a cult classic, known for being perverse, disgusting and funny. Loosely based on H.P. Lovecraft's stories about Herbert West, a resurrector of the dead, it is a stylish flick told in a Grand Guignol style that will have you squirming.

This year's animated entry is 1988's Akira, directed by Katsuhiro Otomo. Motorcycle-riding teenagers in post-Apocalyptic Tokyo pit themselves against an evil gang with telekinetic powers. A violent fight for love and glory, set in the world of lasers and animation. Children are also the protagonists in 1958's The Space Children, directed by Jack Arnold. This allegory about the generation gap

Daly said ticket sales have been strong, but tickets will be available at the door the day of the festival for $21.50. Marathon humanoids are encouraged to bring coolers, pillows and caffeine, as well as laser guns and helmets.
